Smells like team spirit

At short chess camp for Asian Games, lot of tactics, some fun, and lessons from Boris Gelfand

AMIT KAMATH

KOLKATA, SEPTEMBER 5

SOME OF India's top chess stars allowed themselves a brief break from training on Sunday to celebrate the birthday of Arjun tion, these days time is at a premium for India's top chess talents: R Praggnanandhaa, D Gukesh, Vidit Guirathi, Erigaisi and Pentala Harikrishna

But after the celebration, the players were back at work, cramming in some team work before they prepared to face off each other at the Tata Steel Chess

"Arjun's birthday was a nice social event, for which we all came together. It had to be a bit short, but we had to keep it that way because of the very hectic schedules of players who have a lot of tournaments in general," says coach of the team Srinath Narayanan.

The frantic schedules of players, coupled with how little time they spend in India these days, meant that they could squeeze in just a short window of five days to train together in Kolkata for the upcoming Asian Games in Hangzhou. After the strenuously long FIDE World Cup in Baku which lasted for nearly a month, many of the Indians flew to Dusseldorf to play in the FIDE World Rapid Team tournament. After that, they landed in Kolkata most of them at least, with Pragg being required to travel even more, across the country for felicitations — where they held a quick camp before the start of the country's biggest session, posted by Vidit Gujrathi on social media, shows the players flanked by Srinath and Boris Gelfand, who has been invited by the AICF to coach the youngsters just for the camp. What's remarkable about the image is that there is just one laptop open, the one in front of Gelfand. The Indian youngsters --- each raised in the internet era --- has a chess board to figure out tactics on.

"These days, it's very easy to double check everything with engines. But these guys are very curious to learn by themselves over the board," Gelfand told The Indian Express. "So we would have positions that I would check with engines to see if it was correct. They would do it over the board. And too often, it was correct. Maybe these players have had different mediums to learn aspects of the game than us, but they are as motivated and ambitious as us.'

The Soviet-born Israeli chess player, who famously challenged Viswanathan Anand for the world championship crown in 2012, currently helps the fivetime world champion from India at the Westbridge Anand Chess Academy as a mentor and was invited by the AICF last year for a camp for the Indian national team players. They invited him again this year.

"It's not a permanent thing. The federation invited me. If they invite me again for more camps, I'll be happy to visit," he added.

There is a unique dynamic at play: many of the players are friends, but are also rivals chasing the same limited spots at the top of the pyramid.

"There was good camaraderie especially among potential rivals, said Srinath who added: "There are aspects of chess which are common for everyone. And there's no interpersonal rivalry involved. There are aspects of chess which are personal, which you want to keep to yourself. It was quite easy to interact and collaborate. They're quite enthusiastic about

"We worked mainly on middle game and endgames rather than openings. The main secrets of chess players are in opening preparations. So we didn't work on openings. We looked at endgames and middlegames, so all of them can acquire useful knowledge and no tension will drawing of lots for the Tata Steel event. "I used to be the youngest player in national camps some time back. Now I am the second oldest," Vidit said with a smile.

Srinath says that the enthusiasm shown by the Indians at the short camp left Gelfand impressed, despite him having seen wave after wave of chess players over many generations.

Talking about the influence of Gelfand, Srinath said: "The things they are good at is more of sporting qualities related to chess. But the things that Boris has accumulated through his years of experience are some things that can save years of their

While India is sending a strong team to Hangzhou, teams like Uzbekistan, Vietnam and Iran will pose a strong challenge. But the biggest names in the fray could be in the Chinese team, who could call on reigning world champion Ding Liren.

Srinath, who is the personal coach of Arjun, believes that these young players will look at the Asian Games as just another event. "I'm not entirely sure if the enormity of the stage will sink in," says Srinath. "But that's a good thing. It won't add to the AMERICAN SIXTH seed Coco Gauff bolstered her hopes of securing a maiden Grand Slam title as she enjoyed a stress-free 6-0 6-2 win over Latvia's Jelena Ostapenko on Tuesday to reach the U.S. Open semi-finals.

U.S. Open included hardcourt titles in Washington and Cincinnati, converted six of her seven break points and dropped serve just once during the 67minute match in Arthur Ashe Stadium.Ostapenko entered the match full of confidence having upset world number one Iga Swiatek in the previous round but against Gauff the misfiring

Gauff won 6-0,6-2. USA Today

Latvian 20th seed could not find her range and delivered an errorfilled performance.

Gauff was in control from the start and showcased excellent court coverage while delivering a steady stream of balls deep into the corners en route to captur ing the first set in 20 minutes and limiting Ostapenko to seven points. Former French Open champion Ostapenko, playing in her first U.S. Open quarter-final, finally got on the board with a break to level the second set at 1-1 but Gauff never wavered as she broke right back and cruised

The 19-year-old American went up a double break for a 5-2 lead before closing out the match on her serve in a game in which she had to come back after falling behind 0-30. With the win, Gauff avenged her round of 16 loss to the Latvian at this year's Australian Open that left the American in tears

'Pragg has to be aware that there are a lot of tough steps ahead' ternet, Anand points out just how

AMIT KAMATH

Viswanathan Anand has no qualms in admitting he mis-calculated. Just three years ago, in December 2020, when he had started the Westbridge Anand Chess Academy (WACA), he remembers thinking that the players he had taken under his wings – Praggnanandhaa, D Gukesh and Nihal Sarin - would need five or six years to enter the elite club of 2700-rated players. It's an elusive club in the sport, with cur rent membership of 35 people.

Gukesh reached the fabled mark in July last year within two years of Anand's prediction. Pragg followed in July this year. Arjun Erigaisi is also a part of the club, with Nihal just six points away. "The reason I say this is a golden generation is because all of these guys are still teenagers with the exception of Arjun, who became 20 two days ago – which means, very conservatively, for the next 10 years at every top tournament as Indians we can hope for one of our players to be there. It's a great time to be an Indian chess fan," Anand told journalists on the sidelines of the Tata Steel Chess India tournament. On Monday, Pragg had told journalists at Kolkata that he feels he has the potential to be a world champion. It's a measure of how much the teenager has grown in confidence.

"It's good that he feels this confident. But again, you have to prove it, and very few people do. I don't say that to mock him or anything. He will need to be aware that there are a lot of tough steps ahead. Even if your odds are very good, you will need to pull it off. Because only one person will get through and it's a very high bar," says India's first grandmaster. Until the generation of prodigies are ready to clear that 'veryhigh bar', there are a few more steps they need to take, believes Vishy. "The (next step) is akin to the difference between being a tourist at a place and living there. It's nice to qualify for the first time. Then you have to be consistent, you have to do it regularly. If you keep on playing the Candidates, and you're established there, that's the next step

It's good that he feels this confident. But again, you have to prove it, and very few people do. I don't say that to mock him or anything. He will need to be aware that there are a lot of tough steps ahead. Even if your odds are very good, you will need to pull it off.."

(before making it to the World Championship). Maybe with all of these guys that's the challenge, to bring consistency into it," he savs.

He also warns that while the jumps these guys have made are spectacular' now the other top players will be working on figuring them out. "This is a very talented group of individuals. Whether they outperform the previous generation (of Indians), we'll see. Once they smell the world championship, they'll want it," says the man who has worn the world champion's crown five times

While a lot has been spoken of how the current prodigies started very young, got good coaching early on and got a lot of early competitive exposure thanks to the in-

been playing. He says he has around 4000 recorded games in the database. Six-seven years ago, he could glance at the database and could tell which player was young based on how many games they had played: those who had around 800 games against their names would inevitably be young. Today players are adding 500 to 600 games a year, thanks to the game going online.

With the current generation playing so much chess, there is also the fear of them getting fa-

"Fatigue is a big part of chess in modern times. The players will have to pay a lot of attention to physical fitness. All the top players in the world follow it, these guys will need to do it as well," he says.

"There is such a thing as too much chess. They will need to learn to stop once in a while. Right now they're hungry for chess. The schedule they have coming up is very demanding. But if they want it, they should go for it. It's also different when you're a teenager. When you're 19, nothing matters.'

Even though the next generation has made the leap and is on its way to fill his massive shoes, Anand is always asked if he still wants to contend. If the current generation's emergence will push him to play full tilt. He points out that last year he played seven classical games. This year he'll play even fewer.

Lanka win thriller against Afghanistan ies and though they had only one

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE SEPTEMBER 6

RASHID KHAN buried his face in his hands as Mujeeb Ur Rahman holed out to long on where Sadeera Samarawickrama took the offering and tumbled on to the ground off the first ball of the 38th over. In the Afghanistan dressing room, they looked inconsolable. Needing three more runs in pursuit of 291/8, they had to get there in 37.1 overs to make it to the Super 4's stage at the expense of Sri Lanka. It looked all but over. But only it didn't. There was still plenty of life in it. But only somebody forgot to tell the Afghans. Their head coach Ionathan Trott, who sat for a major part of the last few overs chewing his nails, should have done better. With a wicket still in hand, had they got to 295 in 37.4 overs, they could have still boarded the flight from Lahore to Colombo to play the Super 4s.

wicket in hand, with Rashid batting on 27 of 16 deliveries, it was very much in their limits. Instead, their eyes and mind didn't look beyond the target which at that stage was three runs of one delivery. Had they managed to get two runs off the first ball of the 38th over, they would have got three more balls to get six runs. It was such a thin margin which decided Sri Lanka's passage to the Super 4 stage, where they will be joined by Bangladesh from Group B.

The Asia Cup, having seen a few damp squibs over the past few days in Pallekele, came alive in Lahore. It was perhaps the sort of contest that was needed, where the emotions overflowed in the dressing rooms and in the stands of the Gaddafi Stadium. BRIEF SCORES: Sri Lanka 291/8 in 50 overs (Pathum Nissanka 41, Dimuth Karunaratne 32, Kusal Mendis 92, Charith Asalanka 36; Gulbadin Naib 4/60) beat Afghanistan 289 in 37.4 overs (Hashmatullah Shahidi 59, Md Nabi 65; Kasun Rajitha 4/79).
