YEVLA, PRAMOD KUMAR :

Sharad Pawar addressed his first rally after the NCP was hit by internecine rebellion last year in the Yevla constituency of his former confidant Chhagan Bhujbal and apologised for giving a "wrong candidate" in 2019 polls. With campaigning for the November 20 assembly polls entering the home stretch, Pawar on Tuesday made an emotional appeal to voters to defeat the "betrayer", reflecting Bhujbal siding with AjitPawar last July.Addressing a rally on the veteran politician disclosed that post the NCP split, Bhujbal offered to mediate between him and AjitPawar, but never showed up again.Pawar said despite giving several opportunities to Bhujbal, ranging from the opposition leader to deputy chief minister overlooking his foibles, he crossed all limits of political (Pawar) and the late Bal of the Opposition. Wayanad By poll: Priyanka Gandhi Faces Key Test; Will She Surpass Rahul's Victory Margin?

WAYANAD, (AGENCIES):

Congress general secretary Priyanka Gandhi Vadra, in her maiden electoral contest in Kerala's WayanadLokSabhabypoll on Wednesday, faces a key test - not only to hold onto the party's stronghold but also to widen the victory margin her brother, Rahul Gandhi, achieved in the last two elections. During the nearly month-long, highvoltage campaign, Priyanka has relied heavily on her brother's tenure as Wayanad MP and his popularity in the constituency to boost her prospects, frequently highlighting the "love and affection" he has for the people of Wayanad and how they supported him during challenging times Rahul, who is the Leader of the Opposition in the LokSabha, has also joined her at public meetings and roadshows in the constituency on several occasions, urging the people of Wayanad to show her the same support they gave him. Meanwhile, her rivals, LDF's SathyanMokeri and NDA's NavyaHaridas, are hoping that Priyanka's lack of electoral experience will discourage voters from choosing her. Mokeri has a history of contesting from the Wayanad LS seat in 2014 and reducing the victory margin of then UDF candidate to 20,000. The LDF and NDA campaign also focused on pointing out that Rahul allegedly rarely came to the constituency after his win from there in 2019 and that he abandoned them after his win in 2024. Both political fronts have claimed that Priyanka too will follow in her brother's footsteps. The LDF and NDA are also of the view that Rahul won in the general elections held in April as the people thought he would be the next prime minister, which would not be the case this time round. Privanka has answered the LDF and BJP's statements questioning her experience by pointing out that she has been active in politics for 35 years, since 1989, when she campaigned for her father, Rajiv to Wayanad if she wins from here, till the people votes will be done on November 23.

tell her not to come there so frequently. The Congress leader further contended that she was a "fighter" and would fight for the interests of the people of Wayanad on every platform.The constituency, which Rahul won this year with a victory margin of over 3.5 lakh votes, was vacated by him following his success in the Rae Bareli LS seat also, necessitating a bypoll in Wayanad. He won the constituency in 2019, with a margin of over 4.3 lakh votes.A total of 16 candidates, including Priyanka, Mokeri and Haridas, are vying for the support of the over 14 lakh voters in the WayanadLokSabha constituency.On Monday, the last day of by-election campaigning in the hill constituency saw roadshows by all three major political fronts, with Rahul showing up in person to garner support for his sister, who is making her electoral debut. Meanwhile, extensive preparations have been made in the constituency, where a bypoll was announced by the Election Commission on October 15.The Wavanad LS constituency comprises seven Assembly segments -Mananthavady (ST), SulthanBathery (ST), and Kalpetta in Wayanad district; Thiruvambady in Kozhikode district; and Eranad, Nilambur, and Gandhi. She also said that she would keep coming Wandoor in Malappuramdistrict. The counting of

Ajit Pawar Backs PM's 'Ek Hai to Safe Hai' Message, Opposes 'Batenge To Katenge' Slogan

■ MUMBAI, SACHIN MURDESHWAR:

Maharashtra deputy Chief Minister AjitPawar supported Prime Minister NarendraModi's `ekhai to safe hai' slogan, but opposed Yogi Adityanath's refrain `batenge to katenge', terming it alien to Maharashtra's ideological heritage. "The remark `batenge to katenge' is inappropriate. People's thinking in UP, Bihar and Madhya Pradesh is different, but such statements don't work here. Using such words holds no significance in Maharashtra, in my opinion. Maharashtra is the state of Chhatrapati Shahu Maharaj, Mahatma Jyotirao Phule and Shivaji Maharaj. People of Maharashtra are different, and they think differently. If anyone leaves the ideology of Shahu, Shivaji, Phule and Ambedkar, then Maharashtra will not Aiit spare them," added.On YugendraPawar, the son of his brother, being fielded by the SharadPawar-led NCP against him on the family turf of Baramati, Ajit said his mother urged the senior Pawar to avoid a contest within the family. About the credit for the `LadkiBahinYojana' for women, which the ruling alliance is hoping will be gamechanger in the elections, AjitPawar said it was a government scheme and will benefit all the Mahayuti partners. When asked for his reaction to Shiv Sena minister TanajiSawant's remark a few weeks ago that he felt like vomiting when sitting next to AjitPawar at cabinet meetings, the NCP chief said it was the wrong statement, and "I will speak with Chief Minister EknathShinde over it."Defending his party colleague Nawab Malik who is facing probe by the Enforcement Directorate, Ajit said none of

RBI cancels licence of Vijaya wadabased Durga Co-op Urban Bank

Mumbai, Anjali Swami :

The Reserve Bank on Tuesday cancelled the licence of Viiavawada-based The Durga Cooperative Urban Bank as the lender does not have adequate capital and earning prospects. The bank ceases to carry banking business, with effect from the close of business on November 12, 2024, the RBI said, adding that the Commissioner for Cooperation and Registrar of Cooperative Societies, Andhra Pradesh, has also requested to issue an order for winding up the bank and appoint a liquidator. On liquidation, every depositor would be entitled to receive a deposit insurance claim amount of his/her deposits up to a monetary ceiling of Rs 5 lakh from Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation (DICGC)."As per the data submitted by the bank, 95.8 per cent of the depositors are entitled to receive the full amount of their deposits from DICGC," the RBI said. Giving details behind the cancellation of the licence of The Durga Cooperative Urban Bank, the RBI said the bank does not have adequate capital and earning prospects. It has also failed to comply with the requirements of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949. The continuance of the bank is prejudicial to the interests of its depositors. The bank, with its present financial position, would be unable to pay its present depositors in full, it said. Emphasising that public interest would be adversely affected if the bank is allowed to carry on its banking business any further, RBI said consequent to the cancellation of its licence, 'The Durga Co-operative Urban Bank Ltd, Vijayawada' prohibited from conducting the business of 'banking' with immediate effect.Banking includes, among other things, acceptance of deposits and repayment of deposits.

Lucknow, Ashok Singh:

A worrying trend has emerged in Uttar Pradesh, where builders are handing over flats to homebuyers without completing the mandatory registration process, resulting in significant financial losses for both the state government and the homebuyers themselves. practice, which has gone largely unchecked. could cost government crores in lost revenue, while buyers are left with higher maintenance fees and reduced control over their properties.The Uttar Pradesh government has now taken notice of this issue, instructing local development authorities to compile a list of builders who are bypassing the registration process. This follows a concerning pattern in which developers issue possession of flats only after securing an Occupation Certificate (OC) and Completion Certificate (CC), but neglecting the crucial step of registration. Under the Uttar Pradesh Apartment Act and the Stamp Act of 1899, developers are legally required to complete the registration of the property before handing over possession to buyers. However, many builders are exploiting a loophole by simply transferring possession with an OC and CC, a move that avoids the payment of substantial stamp duty fees. The result is a severe loss of revenue for the state, with estimates suggesting that approximately 600 flats in Ghaziabad alone have been handed over in this way, leading to a staggering loss of up to Rs 12.000 crore in potential stamp duty revenue. In response to this growing issue, Uttar Pradesh's Housing and Urban Planning Department has begun to investigate flats that have been handed over to buyers without formal registration. The Ghaziabad Development Authority has also been ordered to prepare a detailed report on the matter. This follows a previous attempt in 2018, when the Ghaziabad district administration filed an FIR against three developers for similar offences – accepting full payments from buyers but failing to complete the registration process.

Hidden Costs for Homebuyers Homebuvers, meanwhile, are bearing the brunt of this loophole. Builders intentionally registration for financial gain. When a flat is sold without registration, the builder retains control over the property's maintenance, allowing them to charge higher maintenance fees. Once registration is completed, this responsibility shifts to the Apartment Owners Association (AOA) or Residents Welfare Association (RWA), which typically results in lower fees for the residents. In addition to inflated maintenance charges, builders also profit from electricity sales. Builders purchase electricity from the government at a subsidised rate and resell it to the residents at a higher rate, pocketing the difference. However, once a flat is officially registered, the buyer gains full ownership, and the builder loses the ability to charge inflated rates for services like electricity, which further reduces their profits.For those considering buying a flat in Uttar Pradesh, it is crucial to ensure that the registration process is completed before taking possession. Without registration, you risk being overcharged for maintenance and utility services, and you may face difficulty in asserting your rights as a property owner. Additionally, by bypassing the registration, the builder may be attempting to evade taxes and other financial obligations, which could leave you with an incomplete or legally insecure ownership claim.In light of these issues, prospective buyers are advised to remain vigilant and demand proper registration before accepting possession of any property. It is important to remember that while an Occupation Certificate and Completion Certificate may seem like sufficient proof of ownership, only through official registration can buyers fully secure their rights.

Overall, the company reported 24.4 Y-o-Y growth in revenue to reach Rs 1,874 crore with Ebitda margin sequentially at 5.5 per cent, missing our estimate by 50 bps. Despite the miss, we believe the core Ebitda margin continued to improve with a 20 bps jump Y-o-Y while Fashion losses sustained around Rs 25 crore.We forecast core BPC to sustain Ebitda margin improvement driven by operating leverage while other segments will see peak losses in FY25. We find downside limited with favourable risk reward making Nykaa the top pick in the internet space.The brokerage retained 'Buy' while maintaining the target price at Rs 250 per share.

NSE To End Weekly Expiry For Bank Nifty From Today; What It Means For Investors, Traders

New Delhi, Agencies : India's largest options contract Nifty Bank will have its last weekly expiry today as Sebi's new regulations come into force from next week. The Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI), in a regulatory update on 10 October 2024, announced several measures to enhance protection investor and market stability in the One derivatives segment. notable change is the limitation weekly of derivatives contracts to a single index per exchange, intending to reduce volatility in the market during contract expiry days. In response to this new regulation introduced by SEBI, the National Stock Exchange of India (NSE) has announced plans weekly index discontinue derivatives for the Bank Nifty, Nifty Midcap Select, and Nifty Financial Services indices. Nifty Midcap Select will see its last weekly expiry on November 18 while the last date for Nifty Financial Services is November 19. Nifty Bank and the other two indices will, however, continue to be available for monthly expiry trading. "We are in talks with Sebi if all the monthly expiries should be held on the same day or on different days of the week. Guidelines will come," Sriram Krishnan, Chief Business Development Officer, NSE, said.In the first half of FY25, Nifty Bank had the highest share of 38 per cent in terms of premium turnover in the derivatives market. Nifty was second on the spot with 28 per cent share, followed by BSE Sensex at 7 per cent and BSE Bankex at 3 per cent, according to IIFL

Impact on Investors and aders

Traders
Nifty Bank traders will now have to look for other options with market experts saying that volumes will get shifted to monthly expiries as well as other products. The discontinuation of weekly expiry contracts will have an impact on traders and investors who use these contracts for their trading strategies.
The discontinuation could lead to discontinuation could lead to changes in volatility patterns and pricing dynamics. It is closely monitor movements and consider alternative investment options."Nifty Bank and Nifty weeklies cater to different types of traders. While Nifty is a broad market benchmark, Nifty Bank is a sectoral index and has the least number of constituents and a lower lot size making it the most volatile of the two. So those who have gotten used to the wild swings and multiple trading opportunities that such volatility presents, will certainly miss it, but isn't that what SEBI intended in the first case," Anand James, Chief Market Strategist, Geojit Financial Services, .. As the new rules kick off in a staggered manner beginning from November 20, analysts say that the six steps proposed by Sebi will have a positive impact on the market ecosystem by discouraging casual traders looking to make a quick buck."We see phased implementation over the next 3-6 months as a big positive for market health as prevents any systemic shocks and leads to a calibrated tightening of the market," Jefferies said.

BJP leaders and Shiv Sena (UBT) back Independent Candidate and City Chief Vijay Chougule

AIROLI, SACHIN MURDESHWAR:

Airoli's political scene has been shaken by a major rebellion during the assembly elections, as leaders from BharatiyaJanata Party (BJP) and ShivSena (UBT) faction have decided to support independent candidate Vijay Chougule.This surprising move has sparked a wave of speculation regarding discontent within party ranks in the Airoli constituency. Among the prominent figures leading this defection is BJP minority leader Advocate Jabbar Khan, who has joined forces with former corporators Ramdas Pawale and Vijayanand Mane. Adding to the growing wave of support for Chougule is Madhukar Raut, a department head and father of former corporator Meghali Raut. These influential leaders, once steadfast party loyalists, have openly backed Chougule, citing the need for a fresh alternative in Airoli.The shift has turned heads across political circles, with observers noting the potential impact on the BJP's voter base in the area. The open endorsement from respected former party members is expected to bolster Chougule's campaign, presenting him as a formidable contender and reshaping the dynamics in Airoli ahead of election day. However, all is not well in the Shiv Sena as top leaders have rebelled in both the constituencies. After its top leader Vijay Nahata quit to contest as an independent in Belapur, City Chief Vijay Chougule is set to contest against BJP MLA

Ganesh Naik in Airoli. Explaining to NH abou his decision to contest as an independent candidate, Vijay Chougule, who filed his nomination papers on Tuesday with Pressure Cooker as his Party Symbol, said, "I have repeatedly said that we cannot campaign for Ganesh Naik who has always been against us and our leader." Stating that he will not resign from his post, Chougule said, "If the party wants to sack me, it can do so. Why should we be the only ones to the alliance discipline?"Commenting on the rebellion in the party, Shiv Sena city coordinator, Kishore Patkar, said, "We have learned of Chougule's decision. Our next course of action will depend on what chief minister Eknath Shinde instructs us about Airoli. In Belapur, we are, of course, supporting BJP's MandaMhatre, is our Mahayuti candidate."Kishore Patkar, city party coordinator, further said, "Both Nahata and Chougule are key leaders of the party in Navi Mumbai. The CM can resolve the issue." Adding to his stand, Chougule said, "I helped Ganesh Naik during the last assembly election to provide him a huge lead where he won the Airoli seat, but he never supported us. We need at least one seat. We will not work for Naik's if they are given tickets as candidates. The CM is busy now and he has asked for time to address the issue. Our party workers are unhappy with the Naik's." Chougule added that he would not join any other party and would certainly contest the election as an Independent Candidate.MNS city Gajanan Kale also filed his nomination from Belapur while Shiv Sena (UBT) candidate MK from Airoli Madhavi filed constituency. In Panvel, three-time MLA Prashant Thakur filed his nomination from the BJP.

Our Simple (and Low) Expectations from the New Chief Justice

New Chief Justice he republic has a new chief justice. Since Chief Justice Sanjeev Khanna will stay only for seven months in that designated house on Krishna MenonMarg, it will be unfair to burden him with any great expectation, and, hopefully he will also not burden himself with this hobbling business of legacy. What the citizens can, nonetheless, reasonably expect of him is that he would remind himself every morning, till May 13, 2025, of the oath he took a day ago: "That I will duly and faithfully and to the best of my ability, knowledge and judgment perform the duties of my office without fear or favour, affection or ill-will and that I will uphold the constitution and the laws." A profound burden.Retired judges, eminent lawyers, and other seasoned court-watchers have observed a transformation in the man the moment he takes over as the Chief Justice of India. The alchemy manifests itself in mysterious ways.A strange sense of selfimportance subverts years of common sense and judicial fortitude. Each occupant of that august office finds himself having to balance constitutional dharma with portmanteau of individual karmas. certitudes honed compromises made, and, admirable strengths and unsavoury weaknesses. By the time a man gets to be the chief justice of India, he has travelled on long and slippery path of networking and god-fathering. Consequently, each occupant brings to the job a highly nuanced - but a self-serving- sense of honour.In recent years even a minimal sense of honour is being grudged to the office of Chief Justice of India. Two weeks ago, India Today, in its compilation of its 'High and Mighty' ultimate power list of 2024, not only clubbed the then Chief Justice D.Y. Chandrachud in the category of 'Portraits Framed in Steel,' but placed him behind the principal secretary, the national security advisor and the Reserve Bank of India governor. The CJI was pigeonholed along with such instruments of executive as cabinet secretary, director of the Enforcement Directorate and the Central Bureau of Investigation director. Chief Justice Khanna and his colleagues may want to ponder as to why this utter institutional devaluation of the judiciary took place. A partial answer can perhaps be deduced from how the Solicitor General of India last week told off the then Chief Justice. When a CJI-headed bench was passing orders in the matter of the Manipur chief minister "tapes," the learned SG had the gumption to tell the CJI that he and his colleagues lived in "ivory towers." It is unthinkable that an Attorney General like M.L. Setalvad or even a Soli Sorabjee would have dared to use this kind of language of contempt. Those were different times and had different etiquettes of respect. In fact, this was the second time that the same law officer was flinging the charge at the bench. In the matter of electoral bonds, the CJI and his colleagues were told judges "sit in ivory tower and will never know what is going on." On both occasions, the SG was careful to add that he did not mean to use the "ivory tower" expression either "negatively" or in a "pejorative sense," yet there was no mistaking the derision. Pejorative or not, the "ivory tower" takedown does betray the ruling elite's superciliousness. It is understandable for a political clique to convince itself that it is true and authentic representative of the masses. people or citizens. And, once in power, the same clutch of politicians can mesmerise itself with its ability to read the masses' pulse: and, therefore, whatever the ruling group does or does not do - moral or immoral, legal or illegal, ethical or unethical - carries with it. ipso facto, a stamp of legitimacy. A leader then demands that all institutions of the state bend over backward to accept, justify and rationalise his every act of whim and fancy as legitimate, beyond scrutiny or questioning. The new Chief Justice may or may not want to put up with the arrogance of those who do not sit in ivory towers and instead take pride in working the streets; but he need not allow himself to feel intimidated by all those who presumably drive their power and clout from having masses in their thrall. After all, as a life-long servant of law he knows - as does every student in every law school - that in India the only source of legitimacy is the constitution of India. The chief will do himself and the institution over which he now presides a great favour if he would simply re-affirm daily the supremacy of the constitution. So long as India remains a constitutional democracy, it will remain the prime task of the higher judiciary to see to it that authority is exercised only lawfully, in accordance with prescribed rules and regulations - and not as per the preference of any dharma sansad or personal communication between a judge and their god or any presumed demand of public conscience. The new Chief Justice need not seek to carve out a name for himself in history books; he will be remembered in history if he simply remembers that he is empowered enough to see to it that a wayward executive does not maul the constitution.

The 'Steel Frame' of the Nation Is Crumbling. Is Anyone Listening?

DINESH SINGH: s a postcolonial nation, we are fond of launching into diatribes against the colonial ideology using snappy phrases like 'civilising mission' and 'the white man's burden' - and asserting our commitment to decolonisation. But every now and then we end up exhibiting how superficial and hollow the whole project has been. Wittingly or unwittingly, we disclose our full subscription to the principle that served as an axle for the genocidal juggernaut of colonialism - the principle of inequality. Recently, three civil servants were found brazenly doing what they are under oath never to do in public life - harbouring casteist, classist and sexist opinions about people they are duty-bound to serve and allowing those opinions to influence how they discharge their duties. Their egregious behaviour, reflective of a deep rusting of "the steel frame", must have had Sardar Patel, who christened them so, turning in his grave. The first incident took place in the office of NehaKumariDubey, the Mahisagar district collector. She was approached by Vijay Parmar, a law student from the Dalit community, during the state government's taluka-level, grievance redressal programme. The programme, held on October 23 at Lunawada, was ironically named SWAGAT (welcome). In an unwelcoming tone, the administrator was briefly seen and then heard in a viral clip, berating the student who questioned her inaction regarding his brother's complaint launched months ago and if his grievance would meet the same fate. In a do-what-youwant gesture, an angry and 'insulted' administrator asked him to go to the apex court and then got the security officer to strip the complainant of his mobile phone. What happened next is deeply disturbing and alarming. Dubey was heard making comments about harmful stereotypes around the Dalit community and women in the context of the alleged misuse of statutory safeguards available to them under law. Sitting in her office of power, she allegedly aired a contentious view that about '90%' of registered cases of atrocities were fake. motivated to 'blackmail' 'non-SC/ST' people for different kinds of vested interests. She didn't back her opinion with facts or data. Dubey applied the same logic to cases filed under section 498A of Indian Penal Code (IPC) which protects women against marital cruelty. In so many cases, she said, the complainants' husbands committed suicide due to the 'torture' they had been put through. Her loose-tongued bravado that began with expletives ended with "these kinds of nonsense people have nothing... (else to do)." However, she wasn't scared of such people or their complaints, she concluded. After protests by many groups and Dalit organisations for her suspension, the administrator issued an amusing statement which, apart from invoking the criminal cases against the two brothers, claimed that Parmar was hiding his misdemeanour by putting forward his community and that the administration "never supports casteism/separatism". The second case pertains to a senior IAS officer in Rajasthan, GayatriRathore, who was heard ostensibly asking an unemployed youth what sounded like a rhetorical question: "Did you consult the government before being born [as to whether you'll get a job in time?]" In a video that has since gone viral, the senior bureaucrat - recently appointed to the health department - can be seen outside the SwasthyaBhawan in Jaipur, surrounded by the press and job aspirants handing her their representations.

Visibly outraged, perhaps by the media attention or the rallying crowd of unemployed youth, she shot back when a young man worried about exceeding the age limits for the posts - pleaded with her to intervene. The third incident might not seem as uncivilised because of the absence of any obscene verbal exchange that marked the other two episodes, but it wasn't less so on that account. It framed an encounter between Tina Dabi, the 2015 UPSC topper and the district collector of Barmer, and BharatiyaJanata Party (BJP) leader SatishPoonia, the former obsequiously and repeatedly bowing her head with folded hands while greeting the latter upon his arrival. Not long ago, Dabi was at the centre of a media spectacle, peremptorily asking Barmer shopkeepers to ensure cleanliness around their shops, else she would get them sealed.The simultaneous emergence of these acts of incivility by civil servants - dutybound to work with empathy, efficiency and impartiality - raises questions about the scale of corrosion within the steel frame and the erosion of the constitutional values they are meant to embody. Are these instances exceptions to the norm, or is it the reverse? Has the system always been so corroded, or has it been influenced by shifting sociopolitical climates? These are not rhetorical questions. The appalling conduct highlights two problems – the utter derision among the elite for the toiling masses and a corresponding scale of sycophancy towards those in power. The real question is what kind of reading these officials must have done to familiarise themself with the existential realities of this diverse and complex country in the run up to the UPSC exam. More importantly, what are their training academies doing to wean them away from harbouring such gross ideas? However, they cannot be faulted beyond a point, in view of the government's policies like lateral entry to the services among others. The root of the malaise lies somewhere else and before probing it, let's analyse the implications of the language these bureaucrats used, humiliating in the first two instances and cringe-worthily unctuous in the third. Callously calling a majority of cases related to caste-based violence as motivated is reflective of the upper-caste disgruntlement with the statutory safeguard accorded to a community which has suffered the worst kind of oppression for centuries. This reaction, not merely against the safeguard but against the accordance of human dignity and equality, has found most hideous expressions in the history of independent India - the most pronounced being the two gory antireservation riots that rocked Gujarat in 1981 and 1985 and in the anti-Mandal mania. It is even more striking that the officer (Dubey) branded a majority of women, who courageously took their assaulters to court, as malicious and sadist. The language used by her stereotypes not just their immediate referents, but entire communities as intellectually lesser beings and immoral for being born 'unlawfully'. Especially the term 'harami', the illegitimately begotten, maligns a great multiplicity of communities and cultures in which a woman's sexuality is not policed and birth of human life is not legitimised by the demands of wedlock. The vicious jibe of the second officer (Rathore) to the beleaguered youth derides a class of people with the Churchillian insult of breeding like rabbits. Linking the accident of birth to one's unemployment and then using that skewed logic to categorise people can only be imagined by a colonial mindset. What is worrisome is that such characterisation of the 'other', has been in vogue and expressing

it in a competing scale of incivility, starting from the public offices to drawing rooms, has become a national sport. Where does this incivility come from? ,HistorianAishwary Kumar attributes this to the 'neodemocratic' condition that inheres a neoliberal hatred of the poor and the underprivileged and collapses identity politics in the conventional sense.The insidious workings of the neoliberal order makes it difficult for the privileged sections to forge their identity in solidarity with fellow human beings. As a result, identities are curated today in the regimes of indifference, a regime that drives its subjects to disregard 'the undesirable' while being interested in its destruction. Equipped with such a self-contradictory mindset, these people then proceed to forge their own majoritarian identity which becomes the norm. However, these privileged coalitions of identity, in the process, end up bereft of any language of humanity, morality, constitutionality. The neoliberal era, thus, becomes not only a witness to the 'eviction' of the wretched of the earth from their 'home', both material and symbolic, but even constitutes what Matthew Desmond calls "...a traumatic rejection...a denial of one's most basic human needs, and an exquisitely shameful experience."Indeed, in recent history, we saw this kind of eviction taking place at a macro level in the turmoil created by legislations surrounding citizenship and subsequently in the short-noticed national lockdown, proclaimed by invoking the provisions of colonial-era Epidemic Diseases Act (1897). What is pertinent to note here is the fact that the translation of the evicted into disposable beings was 'written', legally and legibly, by the same institutions of governance and state power that were responsible for their welfare and protection. In the atrocious aporia of democracy, as Etienne Balibar reminds us, the evicted and the excluded are 'produced', by disciplinary/ institutional mechanisms and a perverted politics of representation, as 'abnormal' or monsters on the margins of humanity. However, neoliberal order in India, to my mind, is too young to distort the collective unconscious, if it wasn't already so, in such fundamental ways. Digging deeper, one would realise that the despicable attitudes of the civil servants stand firmly on the discriminatory ground, laid over millennia by manipulations of 'caste' in the broader sense of the term in which Isabel Wilkerson uses it. Caste essentially sustains on the denial of equality. Dr.Ambedkar described it impeccably when he said, caste constituted "...an ascending order of reverence and descending order of contempt." The contempt the two officers exude towards subaltern groups and the reverence the third oozes for her political master can be explained only by the insidious and invidious manoeuvres of caste. These manoeuvres spawn and feed on a vicious politics of identity, whereby one contrives one's superior identity by maligning and stereotyping the identity of the other. In this process of calculated denigration and dehumanisation, the other is invested with traits and essence in contrast to which one's sublimity gets curated. Historically, caste has carried out such otherisation by belittling the bodies, skills, knowledge and world-views of the underprivileged sections of Indian society. Today, it is achieved by something as innocuous as asking a citizen to keep her mobile phone out when she steps into a public office. With no statutory sanction for it in any rulebook, such an injunction strips a citizen of constitutionally guaranteed equality at the outset of her interface with the state. At times, this happens in settings as enlightened and egalitarian as an institution of higher education. Secondly, caste is also sustained, as Dr.Ambedkar brilliantly observed, by gatekeeping of female sexuality, by an unfailing observance of endogamy. Thus, a woman transgressing caste boundaries for a relationship is considered loose and her offspring, by a logical extension, inferior; a harami, born without consulting the (casteist, colonial) state. And a culture which endorses such a convention automatically backward. Finding fault with the uncivil officers as individuals is naïve for it's not them but the hydra-headed demon of caste. sexism, neoliberalism and colonialism within them which is blabbering indecencies in public space. They are just dummies of a dangerous ventriloquist, which makes them forget that India had chosen a path to selfconception, fundamentally different from the ethno-nationalist trajectories of European nation-states. To ensure equality and dignity to all citizens and to build a strong nation, the constitution had killed that ventriloquist juridically and entrusted the responsibility of calling the canker's political and ideological endgame to various institutions, guarded by the proverbial steel frame. But the task of guarding the frame itself was devolved to educational institutions, which have failed in doing their job.During the quarter of a century since freedom, Indian universities have worked overtime to produce generations of citizens in whom inequality as an overarching worldview has sustained in one form or the other. As a result, today we have independence, not swaraj; we are a sovereign nation, but with her fragments invisibilized, whom ParthaChatterjee calls "the outside" of the political society, the riffraff who cannot make effective claims on governance. Our failed education system has spawned a bunch of people, the dummies of caste and neoliberal orders. who cannot even frame the right question when confronting a complex situation, just like the senior IAS officer in Rajasthan. In the aftermath of national lockdown, when I asked a group of postgraduate students in my online poetry circle what they thought of the blood-curdling tragedy in which 16 migrant workers, on their way to Bhusawal, got run over by a goods train, everybody fell eerily silent. When probed further, having briefly expressed sympathy for the 'unfortunate' victims, they began to complain about why they were travelling and not following the norms of 'social distancing' a phrase used throughout the pandemic by everyone, including the state, despite its connotation of caste apartheid. Wasn't it in everybody's interest that the lockdown was declared? How was it possible that they decided to sleep on the tracks and not anvwhere else?I wasn't shocked because these were the questions being asked in all bourgeois spaces. Nobody could 'see' that they were not consulted beforehand or were seen through by the state, that they were the hands that literally 'built' the nation, that their frantic cries for help on social media and news portals went unheard. After the second wave of pandemic ended, I was speaking to a class of law students at an elite university. The discussion veered to the plight of migrant workers who walked thousands of miles during the lockdown to their homes in rural India. Most of the i-Pad wielding millennials in the class felt that it was a necessary step, and the suffering of over one-crore migrants was an unavoidable by-product of the 'greater good'. These students were the steel frame in the making. Being purblind to one's motivations is the hallmark of a puppet and nation-building is not a puppet show. Are the makers of steel frame listening? Trump 2.0: How The New Team's Stand On Immigrants, Pakistan, China May Impact India

Washington DC, Agencies:

Fresh from a landslide win, US President-elect Donald Trump has started to pick his team, in keeping with his 'Make America Great Again' (MAGA) poll campaign. All of his team members are Trump loyalists who are known for their tough stance on issues such as immigration, border security and war, among others.On the team are Mike Marco Rubio, Waltz and US-India proponents of partnership who are against and Pakistan, while Stephen Miller and Tom Homan are against immigration.During his earlier tenure, Trump's H-1B visa programme had substantial impact on Indian professionals in the US. He had attempted to increase wage requirements for foreign workers and imposed additional restrictions for Indian IT professionals and technology firms. A similar policy could hit Indian workers in American job markets. Additionally, stricter immigration laws could prompt Indian tech firms to explore other markets or invest in creating more domestic opportunities. A look at the key appointments and how they could impact America's foreign policy:

MIKE WALTZ: HAWKISH ON CHINA, HAD PRAISED PM MODI

A retired Army National Guard officer and war veteran, Mike Waltz, 50, was a three-term GOP congressman from east-central Florida and was the first Green Beret elected to the US House. He has been chairman of the House Armed Services subcommittee on readiness and a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. Waltz is an ardent Trump advocate who backed efforts to overturn the 2020 election and is expected to take his vision to boost America's security forward. He has also repeated Trump's frequent complaints about a so-called "woke" military that the former president has derided as soft and too focused on diversity and equity programs. What it means: Waltz is considered hawkish on China, and had called for a US boycott of the 2022 Winter Olympics in Beijing due to its alleged involvement in the origin of COVID-19 and its ongoing mistreatment of the minority Muslim Uighur population. He has been a sharp critic of the chaotic US withdrawal from Afghanistan and has called on the US to hold accountable those who bear responsibility for the deaths of the 13 US service members at Abbev Gate and for "thousands of Americans and allies behind enemy lines". Waltz was against the Biden administration's attempts to broker a ceasefire in Gaza between Israel and Hamas. He had also criticised the Biden administration for arming Ukraine to repel Russia's invasion as "too little, too late". However, later on.

he has been seen supporting Trump's view that Europe, too, should bear the burden of supporting Ukraine as the US needed to focus on its borders. Waltz has on several occasions reiterated the importance of India to the US, according to ANI. In 2023, Waltz travelled to India to take part in the Independence Day celebrations, and praised PM NarendraModi.Earlier in June, he had slammed Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau and "happily predicted the demise of his government in the next election". Waltz's appointment would add another dimension to how the country would take on China and its role in the ongoing wars and ties with India.

MARCO RUBIO: AGAINST AID FOR UKRAINE, KEEN ON INDIA-US PARTNERSHIP Marco Rubio, 53, a Florida-

born politician, is on track to be the first Latino to serve as America's top diplomat secretary of state - once the Republican president-elect takes office in January. He was arguably the most hawkish option on Trump's shortlist for secretary of state, and he has advocated for a muscular foreign policy concerning America's geopolitical foes, including China, Iran, and Cuba. What it means: While most of his proposed policies were aimed at China and Iran, Rubio has said in recent interviews that Ukraine needs to seek a negotiated settlement with Russia rather than focus on regaining all territory that Russia has taken in the last decade. He was also one of 15 Republican senators to vote against a $95 billion military aid package for Ukraine, passed in April. "I'm not on Russia's side but unfortunately, the reality of it is that the way the war in Ukraine is going to end is with a negotiated settlement." Rubio told NBC in September.He is a supporter of India-US partnership. In July 2024. Rubio had introduced the US-India Defense Cooperation Act to expand bilateral cooperation as India faced increased aggression from Beijing.In 2020, he sponsored a bill to block imports of Chinese goods made with forced Uyghur labour, which US President Biden signed into law in 2021. Rubio could play a key role in shaping Trump's policy towards

STEPHEN MILLER: AMERICA IS FOR AMERICANS AND AMERICANS ONLY

Russia and Ukraine, a war Trump had promised to end.

Trump has named longtime adviser Stephen Miller, an immigration hard-liner, to be the deputy chief of policy in his new administration. Miller is one of Trump's longest-serving aides, dating back to his first campaign for the White House. He was a senior adviser in Trump's first term and has been a central figure in many of his policy decisions. particularly on immigration, including Trump's immigrant families as deterrence program in 2018. What it means: Miller has helped craft many of Trump's hardline speeches, and was often the public face of those policies during Trump's first term in office and during his campaigns. Miller drew large cheers at Trump's rally at Madison Square Garden during the race's final stretch, telling the crowd, "Your salvation is at hand ...after decades of abuse that has been heaped upon the good people of this nation — their jobs looted and stolen from them and shipped to Mexico, Asia and foreign countries. The lives of their loved ones ripped away from them by illegal aliens, criminal gangs and thugs who don't belong in this country."His stance is clear: "America is for Americans and Americans only." This means. as promised, the US could see mass deportations.

TOM HOMAN: ZERO TOLERANCE FOR IMMIGRATION

Trump on Monday appointed former Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) Director Tom Homan, 62, as his "Border Czar", expressing confidence in his ability to deport "illegal aliens back to their country of origin". Trump said that Homan would be in charge of the US Borders and that "there is nobody better at controlling our borders" than him. What it means: Homan was the ICE director for the first 16 months in Trump's first term, being the face of the President's "zero tolerance" immigration policies that deviated from the practice of keeping families together during detention and deportation. Thousands of undocumented people, including children, were separated from their family members, which had drawn severe backlash. He said in a recent CBS News interview that families could be reported together. While at ICE, Homan frequently appeared at White House briefings where he backed the arrest of undocumented immigrants. Earlier in September 2017, he had said that his agency would also arrest undocumented people who came forward to care for these children.On Monday. Homan on Fox News warned Democratic governors who try to block deportations "to get the hell out of the way", clearly indicating what his idea of 'America First'

ELISE STEFANIK: ALL FOR STRENGTH LEADERSHIP

Trump has offered Elise Stefanik the job as US ambassador to the United Nations. The 40-year-old New York Congresswoman, the fourth-been a strong ally of the presidentelect and a major fundraiser for GOP. Her aggressive performance during his 2019 impeachment hearings made her a "Republican star," as Trump himself said at the time. And again she stepped up for Trump after his 2020 defeat, when she objected to certifying President Joe Biden's win in the House and promoted Trump's false claims about election fraud.What it means: Stefanik replaced then-Rep. Liz Cheney as GOP conference chair in May 2021 after the Wyoming Republican called out Trump's election falsehoods. She is a member of the Armed Services Committee and the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence. among other committees. Stefanik made headlines last year with her campaign to oust college leaders who did not, as she and others saw it, adequately denounce antisemitism during a House hearing on the matter. In a clear indication of the way forward, Stefanik, another China hawk, in a statement said. stand ready to advance President Donald J. Trump's restoration of America First peace through strength leadership on the world stage on Day One at the United

LEE ZELDIN: DRILL BABY

Trump has selected Lee Zeldin, 44, to serve as his the administrator of Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and Zeldin announced that he has accepted the role. Zeldin. who lost the 2022 New York governor's race to Kathy Hochul, has remained close to Trump, regularly appearing at Mar-a-Lago throughout his 2024 campaign. One of Zeldin's first tasks will likely be starting the process to overturn several of the Biden EPA's biggest rules on climate. including tailpipe regulations for vehicles and rules aimed at slashing pollution from power plants and oil and gas producers. What it means: Zeldin on Monday told Fox News that he will pull back "left-wing" regulations and focus on "unleashing economic prosperity" through the agency. As a Congressman from New York. Zeldin received the League of Conservation Voters' worst score on environmental issues out of the entire New York delegation in 2020. Zeldin has a 14% lifetime score from LCV, a national environmental advocacy group. Around $103 billion in Biden's climate law funding - 92% of the law's total - has been announced as of late October. That money will fund everything from clean energy rebates to helping coastal communities prepare for rising seas and slashing pollution from oil and gas operations. Asked about day one priorities from the agency. Zeldin said. "So. day one and the first 100 days, we have ranking House Republican, has the opportunity to roll back regulations that are forcing businesses to be able to struggle, they're forced to cut costs, internally, they are moving overseas all together. "Contrary to the previous two Democratic presidents, who have used the EPA's regulatory powers to try to fight climate change, Zeldin has pledged to implement Trump's "drill, baby, drill" energy policy for "energy dominance".
