WORLDWIDE, 1 IN 5 EMPLOYEES FEELS LONELY: GALLUP

86% of Indian employees are struggling, suffering: Report

BISWAJIBAN SHARMA New Delhi, June 12

ONLY 14% OF Indian employees consider themselves as "thriving" in life, while the remaining 86% admit to either struggling or suffering. This figure stands in stark contrast to the global average, where 34% of employees feel they are thriving, as reported in the Gallup 2024 State of the Global Workplace report.

The report, which offers a thorough evaluation of employee mental health and well-being on a worldwide scale, categorised respondents into three well-being groups: thriving, struggling, and suffering. Thriving employees rate their current life situation positively and hold an optimistic outlook for the future.

According to the report, 35% of Indian respondents reported experiencing daily anger, the highest percentage in South Asia. Despite this, India had the lowest daily stress levels in the region, with only 32% of respondents experiencing stress, compared to 62% in Sri Lanka and 58% in Afghanistan. This trend mirrors the broader situation across South Asia. where only 15% of respondents consider themselves thriving, significantly below the global

Despite the low percentage of thriving individuals, India has a high employee engagement rate of 32%, which is significantly above the global average of 23%. However, 41% of employees report experiencing high levels of stress, underscoring the urgent need for better management practices and workplace conditions.

The report further stated that about 20% of the world's employees experience daily loneliness, a condition exacerbated for those working fully remotely, where the figure rises to 25%. This chronic loneliness poses significant risks to both physical and mental health, with research linking social isolation to increased mortality rates.

doing the same work every day," said Archana Das, Delhi-based marketing supervisor.

Significantly, one in five employees report experiencing loneliness worldwide. Loneliness is more prevalent among employees younger than 35 than among those aged 35 and older. The percentages of working men and working women reporting loneliness are equal, with each at 20%. Job levels also appear to have little association with loneliness, the report said.

"Social isolation and chronic loneliness have devastating effects on physical and mental health. The risk of mortality among people who lacked community and social ties was two times greater than that of people who had many social contacts. These differences were independent of physical health, socioeconomic status and health practices," said Dr T Tondon, a psychiatrist at Ganga Ram Hospital.

The report also highlighted a notable decline in overall wellbeing among younger employees. In 2023, the percentage of employees under 35 who reported thriving in life decreased, contributing to a global decline in employee wellbeing from 35% to 34%. This decrease is alarming, especially considering the steady improvements recorded in previous

"A conducive working environment is crucial as we invest a significant amount of time in the office. Management must recognize that escalating stress levels among employees does not yield positive outcomes. Additionally, the compensation package should align with the job's nature and the responsibilities it entails, said Subrata Das, a media professional.

Those with a positive view of their present life and future, rating their current situation at 7 or higher, are classified as "thriving." In contrast, those with uncertainty or negativity about their current life, experiencing daily stress and financial concerns, are considered "struggling." The "suffering" group includes individuals feeling miserable about their present life and future, often lacking basic necessities and experiencing significant physical and emotional pain.

The Gallup workplace report evaluates the mental health and well-being of employees worldwide, categorising them into three groups: Thriving, struggling, or suffering based on Gallup's Life Evaluation Index.

IPL's biz value up 6.5% in 2024

FE BUREAU Mumbai, June 12

THEVALUE OF IPLas a business grew by 6.5% to $16.4 billion (₹1.35 trillion) in 2024, buoyed by the league's continued strength and appeal, American investment bank Houlihan Lokey said in a report on Wednesday. The stand-alone brandvalue of the IPL, according to the report, has been pegged at $3.4 billion (₹28,000 cr), which is up 6.3% versus the year-ago period.

Interms of franchises, with a brand value of $231 million (₹1,917 cr), Chennai Super Kings (CSK) continues to be the most valued IPL team, achieving a growth of 9% from the previous year. Royal Challengers Bengaluru (RCB), ranked second with a brand and business value worth $227 million (₹1,884 cr). IPL 2024 winners, Kolkata Knight Riders (KKR), saw the highest growth, with a 19.3% rise from 2023, the report said.

BUSINESS VALUE

(figures in $ bn)

Meanwhile, Mumbai Indians has been ranked fourth with a brand value $204 million (₹1,693 cr), followed by Rajasthan Royals ($113 million or ₹938 cr) and Sunrisers Hyderabad ($132 million or ₹1,096 cr). "The IPL has solidified its status as a premier sports league on the global stage, showcasing an exceptional blend of sportsmanship, entertainment, and commercial success," said Harsh Talikoti, senior vice president, Corporate Valuation Advisory Services at Houlihan Lokey.

Noting that the Tata Group has secured title sponsorship for the IPL for 2024-2028, for about ₹2,500 crore, up nearly 50% from the previous deal, the report added that this, along with last year's media rights auction, reinforces IPL's status as a pivotal platform for advertisers seeking to enhance their value. The report said that franchise revenue has seen a significant rise primarily driven by television rights. This is despite each team having sponsorship revenue ranging from $5 million (₹42 cr) to $12 million (₹100 cr).

Euro 2024: Jerseys are the new sneakers

RAHUL PANDEY & SAYAK DUTTA

New Delhi/Kolkata, June 12

"NOBODY WANTS TO have that!" It has been a popular response in Germany for their away kit at a home Euros. Dropping the old black or green, this one blends hazy purple with pink. "Barbiepink? That's not a German jersey." Such was the uproar against it that German football and Adidas partnered together in a satirical advert to stand their ground: "Yes it is."

In England, the furore has been over a small St. George's cross on the back of the shirt collar. Usually stitched in traditional red and white colors, it's been given a blue, purple and red update. UK Opposition party leader Keir Starmer rued, "It's a big unifier. I'm not even sure they can explain why they needed to change it".

The big international football summer is here, and with it are its many colors. No longer are football kits mere differentiators between two teams.

"They are totems," says Neal Heard, a football shirt expert, consultant and exhibition curator. "If you then put them on the nationhood, they become sacrosanct because you're saying this is exactly who we are. This is the national brand. The brands who are making these have a tough job because if anywhere football fans are more conservative, it's the national team," Heard says.

Staring at the catalogue for the upcoming European Championships, the author of 'The Football Shirts Book - A Connoisseurs Guide'is largely impressed. "Not all are amazing but there's enough good picking his favorites. "Belgium away, based on the Tintin story, is a really cool one. France - hands down, the best footballing nation in kits - home and away are probably my favorites. Even Germany away is quite nice. As is England away. Actually, I adore ones," Heard concedes before that one." Looks a bit like the French home kit, doesn't it."It does. Same sort of colour. They're referencing a track suit, funnily enough, an iconic one from '66-'70."

from Wales, Heard turns behind to access his 400-shirt strong collection and handpicks two - Germany and Holland from 1988 Euros.

Speaking over a video call

"Both these jerseys are quite bold even though they're paying homage to the tradition," says Heard.

A sneaker-like market

£1000. That's how much a replica of the Dutch kit Heard is holding costs currently."Not match worn, just the replica," he presses. "If it was match worn, you'll be talking millions."

Classic Football Shirts, the biggest players in the game were recently offered private equity of £38 million."Not to buy the brand, just to actually come and take it to the next
