International police operation seizes cocaine worth $232 mm

5500 An international police operation has nabled cocaine with a street value of around 200 million euros ($232 million) on a yacht in the Atlantic Ocean, authorities said Monday. Portuguese police said the seizure was the largest in Europe in recent years and the biggest in Portugal for 15 years. Police localized and intercepted a 79 foot yacht at sea, a statement said. They boarded it and found 183 bales of cocaine on board. Police suspect the cocaine belonged to an international drug trafficking gang that was bringing cocaine into Europe through the Iberian peninsula. Three men were arrested and taken to Portugal.

French Prime Minis-ter Jean Castex met Pope Francis at the Vatican on Monday as the French Catholic Church battles a storm over clerical child sex abuse and the sanctity of confession.

The long-planned trip to Rome, which includes talks with Italian Prime Minister Mario Draghi, follows the publication of a devastating report estithat mating Catholic clergy had abused 216,000 children since 1950. Francis, who has made battling the global scourge of clerical abuse global a priority of his papacy expressed "my shame, our shame" at the findings, echoing a similar sentiment from French church leaders.

But a row broke out when Archbishop Eric de Moulins-Beaufort, the head of the Bishops' Conference of France, said priests were not obliged

Moulins-Beaufort's words were in line with Vatican guidelines updated last year, which call on clerics to report claims of abuse lence or sexual assault against minors. After his meeting at the Vatican, Castex told reporters that the pope had said the French church had been "courageous" in dealing with the issue. "He trusts the Church in France to draw conclusions. He is pleased there has been no denial," the premier said.

"The Church will not go back on the dogma of the secret of the confession. But we must at all costs finds ways and means to reconcile this with criminal law, the rights of victims," Castex added. "He is fully aware of this. It's a long-term job." Moul ins-Beaufort was called to a meeting with Interior Minister Gerald Darmanin, and later insisted that protecting children was "an absolute priority". Darmanin accompanied Castex and French Foreign Minister Jean-Yves Le Drian to the Vatican, in the visit marking 100 years since the reestablishment of diplomatic relations between France and the Holy See
