INDIA BECOMING A POPULAR DESTINATION FOR INTERNATIONAL TOURISTS

Local to Limitless: Decoding Travel in a Digital Reality

By 2047, tourism will contribute around $3 to India's GDP, up from $201 b in 2023

Omri Morgenshtern

India's travel sector is going from strength to strength, so much so that the Indian government has aspirations that by 2047, the tourism economy as a whole will contribute around $3 trillion to India's GDP, up from $201 billion in 2023.

The goal is ambitious, but the positive signals are there. India enjoyed a 21% year-on-year (from 2023 to 2024) rise in searches for accommodation made by international travellers on Agoda's digital platform.

"This data shows the growing appeal of India as a destination for international tourists as well as the tremendous opportunity it has to supercharge its ambitions. However, it's important to recognise that there is growing competition from many other emerging markets.

On a macro level, governments and tourism authorities are becoming more creative in signalling the allure of their home market on the global stage. As well as investing in attractive destination marketing campaigns, governments are also creating visa requirements and investing in infrastructure such as airports to make the visiting ex-

TOURISM MARKETING

On a macro level, governments and tourism authorities are becoming more creative in signalling the allure of their home market on the global stage

By having deep access to and relationships with many millions of international travellers alongside deep utilisation of learning algorithms and AI, it's possible for companies like Agoda to understand what potential customers want before offering highly targeted recommendations based on user history and personal preferences alongside optimised pricing to seamlessly meet their travel needs.

At Agoda, we also learn and collaborate with the best local partners on the ground including hotels, airlines, tour operators and destination marketing organisations to ensure that global customers get the best local experience.

As competition for global travellers continues to heat up, success will hinge on a market's ability to inspire through inspirational destination marketing, its willingness to remove barriers to travel, and local operators' readiness to offer personalised experiences through smart technology.

(Omri Morgenshtern, CEO of Agoda, will be speaking at ET NOW Global Business Summit 2025)

perience as safe and frictionless as possible. On a micro level, local hotels, airlines, restaurants and providers of activities are working hard to ensure that they are getting exposure to the right international customers at the right time. This is where rapidly advancing technology plays such a crucial role in making a match between local hotels, airlines, restaurants, providers of activities and global travellers.

Syngene Names Peter Bains CEO as Jonathan Hunt Steps Down

Mumbai: Syngene International, the listed research services arm of Blooom, on Tuesday said Jonathan Hunt, the managing director and CEO, has stepped down from his role as well as from the board of directors to pursue other opportunities in due course.

Consequent to this, the board has appointed Peter Bains as the CEO of Syngene. Both changes are effective immediately. Bains currently serves as the Group CEO of Blooom.

"After almost 10 years with Syngene International as MD & CEO, Jonathan Hunt will be leaving to pursue other opportunities," said Kiran Mazumdar-Shaw, non-executive chairman, Syngene International. — Our Bureau
