Mass production of Sputnik V likely to take several months

SOHINI DAS
Mumbai, 17 September

Dr Reddy's Laboratories (DRL) is preparing for clinical trials of the Sputnik V in India even though major manufacturers here did not show much interest in making the vaccine candidate.

RUN-UP TO VACCINE

- India to have phase-3 trials on 1,000 people for Sputnik V
- Indian trials part of global trial with 45,000 volunteers
- Clinical research organisation for trials selected; trial design in the works
- DCGI to review trial design before it gives a go-ahead
- Industry estimates

- 3-month timeline for trials on 1,000 people for Sputnik V
- Sputnik V requires 2-8°C Celsius for stability
- Sources claim another variant of vaccine is frozen; may need sub-zero temperature
- Indian vaccine makers say Sputnik V is work in progress; await more data revealed the trial design is not ready and hasn't been submitted to the drug regulator here. But the clinical research organisation (CRO) has been selected.

Recruitment of volunteers (around 1,000 people trials planned in India) as well as the process of administering the two-shot vaccine will take at least a month-and-a-half after the regulator approves the trial design.

Analysing the data from these trials will take another few weeks, after which the regulator will evaluate results. DRL will be responsible for securing the necessary approvals to conduct trials here.

"The trial cost may be split in 50:50 with RDIF. The CRO has been selected but the trial design is not yet ready," said an analyst who has spoken with the DRL management. For now, DRL is not producing the vaccine. It will distribute it in India and other nations where it has a strong presence. It is open to manufacturing in the future if things work out.

The firm has no presence in the vaccines segment and analysts feel it might use one of its injectables plants to make the vaccine, which is an adenoviral vector-based vaccine that does not require high-level safety laboratories to make. "DRL has indicated it does not wish to compromise any of its injectables pipeline. However, if it sees significant demand for the Sputnik V, it may consider making it next year using one of its injectables plants. Then it would not require much investments," an analyst said.

Class action suits against HDFC Bank in US

Rosen Law Firm and Schall Law Firm claim bank failed to disclose 'improper lending practices in vehicle financing operations'

Mumbai, 17 September

US-based Rosen Law Firm and Schall Law Firm have filed class action suits against HDFC Bank, alleging misleading public statements and for failing to disclose investors about improper internal controls on lending practices in its vehicle-financing operations.

The lawsuit, filed in the US District Court Eastern District of New York, named outgoing managing director Aditya Puri, CEO-designate Sashidhar Jagdishan, and company secretary Santosh Haldankar as "individual defendants" and collectively, with the bank, as "defendants".

Rosen Law filed the suit on September 14 on behalf of investors who purchased HDFC Bank equity between July 31, 2019, and July 10, 2020. Rosen had said it would file such a lawsuit on September 4, Schall Law Firm also announced such filing on September 8, both for the same period.

The class action filing on Rosen Law's website states "throughout the class period, defendants made materially false and misleading statements regarding the bank's business, operational and compliance policies". Specifically, the bank "made false and/or misleading statements and/or failed to disclose" that it had "inadequate disclosure controls and procedures and internal control over financial reporting". As a result, HDFC Bank maintained "improper lending practices in its vehicle-financing operations", and thus, the earnings generated from HDFC Bank's vehicle-financing operations were unsustainable. "All the foregoing, once revealed, was foreseeably likely to have a material negative impact on HDFC Bank's financial condition and reputation. And, as a result, HDFC Bank's public statements were materially false and misleading at all relevant times," which led to investors suffering damages.

The lawsuit said the bank's American Depository Share fell $1.37 per share, or 2.83 per cent, to close at $47.02 per share on July 13 after it was reported in media that the bank was probing lending practice in the vehicle-financing operations involving the unit's former head Ashok Khanna. Investors who had acquired the shares "at artificially inflated prices during the class period" suffered "significant losses and damages", after the revelation.

HDFC Bank wasn't immediately available for comment. The shares of the bank fell 0.94 per cent to close at ₹1,083.25 a piece on the BSE.

Practo looks to scale faster riding on Covid

BIBHU RANJAN MISHRA
Bengaluru, 17 September

Practo is preparing for a phase of rapid growth as health care gets the utmost importance amid the pandemic and its delivery rapidly moves online.

The Bengaluru-headquartered digital health care firm, backed by investors such as Sequoia and Tencent, is looking at positioning itself as an 'integrated digital platform' and rapidly expanding its base of doctors, diagnostic centres, and the cities and towns it caters to.

"The awareness that Covid has brought about in consumer's mind about health, I think digital health will continue to expand very sharply and positively in the next 4-5 years. We are excited about the opportunities that will come up for us and the digital health care ecosystem," said Practo's Chief Executive Shashank ND.

In the past six months alone, Practo, which has positioned itself as the largest doctor booking platform, has seen 10 times increase in consultations and the number of unique visitors has increased to 175 million.

As telemedicine became the preferred medium for consultations, the firm saw over 70 per cent first time-users and 44 per cent users coming from non-metro cities. Practo's medicine and diagnostic businesses also showed around three times growth since March. It is now looking at increasing the number of pin codes it caters to from 16,000 to 25,000.

"Health care is a wide space and there are probably about a million doctors in India, there are hospitals and clinics, pharmacies, diagnostics, insurance firms. So, we are actually creating an integrated approach of being able to connect all these pieces together," Shashank said.

Practo started as a business-to-business (B2B) company, building software for doctors and offering them software as a service (SaaS). While the company continued with that model for six years, towards 2015 they started looking at the business-to-consumer (B2C) space.

For the B2B business, the company said it would continue with international expansion. And, for the B2C segment, the focus would now be on "onboarding the next set of 200 million users over the next few years" by focusing on smaller towns and cities in India.
