Countries should invest in primary healthcare, it can detect pandemics at an early stage: WHO chief

GANDHINAGAR, AUG 16 /-/-/ Countries of all income groups should invest in primary health care (PHC), which can provide more than 80 per cent of services and also help detect outbreaks of pandemics at an early stage, WHO's Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said on Wednesday.

On the EG.5 strain of the SARS-CoV-2 virus being recently classified by the World Health Organisation (WHO) as a "variant of interest", Ghebreyesus said it is important to "continue to remain vigilant". Ghebreyesus was talking to media persons during his visit to a health and wellness centre (HWC) at Adraj Moti village in Gandhinagar district after his arrival here to attend a global summit on traditional medicine. "The investment in primary health care in Ayushman Bharat" by the Government of India is the right investment, and that's what we are asking all countries to really focus on.

As you know, many countries including high-income countries were surprised by Covid-19," he said. The problem was because of a lack of investment in primary health care, Ghebreyesus said. He said the WHO supported India's Ayushman Bharat initiative ever since it was announced because it believes that countries should invest in primary health care.

This is something that the WHO has been telling countries "and India is actually doing that", he told reporters. Ayushman Bharat, a flagship scheme of the Centre, aims at achieving the vision of Universal Health Coverage. In any health system, Ghebreyesus said, "a strong primary health care is key because most of the services can be provided at primary health care level more than 80 per cent".

Protest in Jammu against installation of prepaid electricity meters

JAMMU, AUG 16 /-/-/ Scores of power consumers held a protest here on Wednesday against the decision of the Jammu and Kashmir administration to install prepaid smart meters.

The protesters also blocked the highway for nearly two hours, alleging that smart meter users in Jammu were receiving exorbitant bills amounting to thousands of rupees. Meanwhile, officials said two smart meters installed by the Jammu Power Distribution Corporation Ltd (JPDC) caught fire in Dantallah Bazar and Pir Mitha areas in the city under circumstances raising suspicions. People hailing from different parts of the city travelled to Vikram Chowk in mini-buses. Their Assembly led to the highway being obstructed. During the protest, anti-BJP and anti-administration slogans were chanted, and a demand was made to halt the ongoing meter installation exercise. "We are demanding the process to install pre-paid smart meters as people, on whose houses smart meters have been implemented, are getting bills in thousands of rupees, said Amit Kapoor, who led the protest. Police responded by using force to return the protesters to the mini-buses, subsequently restoring traffic flow. Kapoor asserted that they were against the current approach to installing prepaid smart meters due to the burden of hefty bills on households where these meters had been implemented. He said that they will not allow the Government to install the meters as this is leading to people getting inflated bills. An official underplayed concerns about potential overcharging, asserting that the notion of overcharging through smart meters was "unfounded and aimed at misleading the public". He asserted that the "precision and automation" of smart meters are advantageous for the public.

"The Government has deputed nodal officers for redressal of grievances of the public in this regard. People should have no doubts and reservations over the issue," he told reporters here. (PTI)

Bihar: Grandchildren of cook who refused to poison Mahatma Gandhi await entire land promised by Prez

PATNA, AUG 16 /-/-/ Grandchildren of Batak Mian, a cook who defied the orders of a British officer to poison Mahatma Gandhi during Champaran Satyagraha in 1917, still await the entire land promised later by independent India's first President Rajendra Prasad in 1952.

Mian, who had to endure brutal torture and eviction from his land at the hands of the British for his patriotic act, died in 1957. According to popular accounts of the 1917 event, the incident took place when Mahatma Gandhi visited Motihari, the then headquarters of undivided Champaran district, to enquire about the appalling condition of indigo farmers. Erwin (known only by his first name), the British manager of an indigo plantation, had invited Gandhi for dinner and asked his cook, Batak Mian, to serve him milk laced with poison. However, he refused to carry out the order and exposed the plot, saving Gandhi's life. The movement of the indigo farmers, which came to be known as Champaran Satyagraha, became a historic event in the Indian freedom struggle and finally, the British were forced to accept the demands of agitating peasants. "Our grandfather Batak Mian had informed Gandhiji about the plot. But he had to pay heavily for his patriotic act. (PTI)

Bharat. Speaking on the EG.5 strain of the SARS-CoV-2 virus circulating in different parts of the world, including India, as being classified by the WHO as a "variant of interest", Ghebreyesus said that it is important to continue to remain vigilant. "So on new variants, not only EG.5, we would expect more variants.

What's important is to really, you know, continue to be vigilant. Many countries are not testing enough, and we wouldn't know whether the virus is changing or not," he said. "So from the EG.5, what we can say is that new variants may emerge and continue so tests will be very important and see how the virus is behaving.

But we have been following the variant, and all emerging variants, and we continue to be vigilant," he said. On being called "Tulsi Bhai" by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Ghebreyesus said that he liked the name because tulsi is a medicinal plant. Earlier, reacting to a video of Ghebreyesus joining a 'dandia' event, Prime Minister Modi said, "My good friend Tulsi Bhai is clearly well prepared for Navratri! Welcome to India, @DrTedros."

"By the way, I just planted tulsi here in the wellness center. And I'm really happy to do that because it has many benefits too. I don't see it only as medicinal, but I think given the climate change we are witnessing now, planting trees is very important," Ghebreyesus said.

"So I'm really glad to be part of that. So I'm happy to be called Tulsi Bhai given the prominence of the plant itself," he said. (PTI)
