Cloud over AGEL plans bad news for India's RE future

Adani firm has plans to build 10% of India's targeted RE capacity by 2030

SHREYA JAI
New Delhi, 5 March

Adani Enterprises chairman Gautam Adani in January 2020 declared his group would invest $20 billion in renewable energy (RE) development over the next decade.

The company has set a target of achieving a capacity of 45 Gw of RE by 2030, the same year India is envisaging to have 500 Gw of non-fossil fuel capacity. Among the established players (which have operational projects), Adani Green Energy (AGEL) not only holds the biggest renewable energy portfolio but aims to construct close to 10 per cent of India's targeted RE capacity by 2030.

It has in its kitty some of the largest single-destination solar-power parks in Gujarat, Rajasthan, and Karnataka.

In comparison, all other leading players fall way behind.

Tata Power's solar power capacity stands at 5.6 Gw and it is aiming to have 25 Gw by 2030. ReNew has a commissioned capacity of 7 Gw and 5.7 Gw is under construction. Reliance Industries is aiming to set up 100 Gw of renewable energy capacity but is yet to commission any project, also most of the capacity would be for captive use.

But what made AGEL the poster boy of India's RE sector till recently is what could create a major hurdle for the company and the country's RE goals.

Goal versus money

Following the Hindenburg report, AGEL has decided to review its capital expenditure (capex) plan of ₹10,000 crore for 2023-24 (FY24). In a post-third quarter results call with its bond holders, AGEL's management said this was a tentative target and was still under review, this paper reported recently. This stands in contrast with the robust growth plans the company has on capacity addition. According to the data shared by company officials during investor calls, it has close to 15 Gw of capacity under construction.

According to Moody's, AGEL's growth plans will entail capital spending of around ₹63,400 crore over the next five years. For its under-construction projects, AGEL takes construction financing from banks, and, once the projects are

Mega projects

- Joint venture with Rajasthan government to develop a 10 Gw solar park
- MoUs worth ₹21,820 cr signed with Andhra Pradesh government for 15-Gw projects operational, refinances that portfolio with international bond funding. But it is refinancing that is cause for concern now.

"AGEL will have $2.7 billion of refinancing due in fiscal year ending March 2025 (fiscal 2025), including $750 million and $500 million of AGEL RG-1 notes maturing in September 2024 and December 2024 respectively. This is the key driver for the negative outlook on the ratings," Moody's said in its credit opinion on AGEL last month.

The document was reviewed by Business Standard. In a call with bondholders last month, AGEL said: "For taking out the construction facility, we will continue to issue 20-year bonds which will be fully amortised with no refinancing risk." The company did not respond to an emailed questionnaire from this paper on its financing plans.

Risk-reward ratio

In the call with bondholders, the AGEL management revealed a peculiar problem being faced by the company. It said state utilities were delaying the last-mile transmission infrastructure and this is compelling the company to take the infirm power route. Infirm power is feeding the electricity generated from a project directly to the grid before the commissioning of the project.

This, however, also points to a larger problem, something that global investors in RE companies have always been worried of -- the health of the off taker. While AGEL does have an exposure to some of the RE-resource rich states, their electricity departments are also some of the biggest defaulters -- barring Gujarat.

This, coupled with the lag in support infrastructure, brings a high sense of uncertainty in its projects for its investors, especially global bond markets. AGEL has a healthy Ebitda (earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation) margin compared to its peers, say market observers but there is limited headroom for taking more debt.

Moody's in its rating downgrade of AGEL said: "The negative rating outlook factors in AGEL's significant refinancing needs of around $2.7 billion in March 2025; its large capital spending program; and dependence on sponsor support, through subordinated debt or shareholder loans."

In July 2021, AGEL had received the shareholders' nod to increase its borrowing limit to ₹25,000 crore.

BlackRock, one of the world's largest investment companies, however, had voted against it, citing "proposed authorisation may result in debt level that exceeds market standards."

Ola, Uber may book ride to court over ban on bike service in Delhi

SURAJEET DAS GUPTA
New Delhi, 5 March

Ride hailing aggregators, and the bike taxi drivers enrolled with them, are planning to go to court within a week for a stay on the Delhi government's recent order banning their services.

Uber, Ola and Rapido are among the big names who offer the service

There are over 120,000 drivers in the capital who provide the service and undertake as many as 3 million to 4 million rides a week, making it the largest market in the country for the service.

The Delhi government banned the service on the grounds that while the bike taxi drivers have private registration numbers, they are carrying passengers on hire which is a commercial operation and, as such, violates the Motor Vehicles Act.

The plan to go to court stems from the breakdown of talks between the drivers and aggregators, and the Delhi government.

A senior executive with one of the aggregators lamented the government's alleged inflexibility. "Surprisingly, the government has said that the new guidelines for aggregators will not come soon but in 3-4 months or later. So that adds to the uncertainty. It leaves drivers and us with no choice but to go to court."

The operators had made two suggestions to break the impasse. One was offering to convert the bikes into electric bikes as long as they had enough time to do so. The other, was ensuring a level playing field for all commercial two wheeler riders, including those who deliver for e-commerce platforms.

The executive said that the operators appealed for operations to not be stopped because of the negative impact this would have on the riders' livelihoods, especially if no business model for converting them to electric bikes was in place.

Drunk & asleep, student pees on co-passenger

An inebriated student aboard an American Airlines flight from New York to Delhi allegedly urinated while asleep in his seat and soiled a male co-passenger on Saturday, with Delhi Police registering a case based on a complaint from the airline.

The airline has submitted a report about the incident to the Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA). The airline seems to have handled the situation professionally and have taken all appropriate action, a senior official at the aviation regulator said.

The incident happened on flight AA292, which landed at the Delhi airport at 9.50pm on Saturday.

When contacted, American Airlines in a statement on Sunday said the flight was "met by local enforcement upon arrival in Delhi due to a disruptive customer" but did not provide specific details about the incident.

Delhi airport DCP Devesh Kumar Mahla on Sunday said a complaint of urination on a co-passenger has been received from American Airlines against one person, who is a student in the US. The accused is a resident of Defence Colony in the national capital. "We have registered a case under sections 510 (misconduct in public by a drunken person) and 294 (punishment for obscene acts or words in public) of the IPC and sections 22 and 23 of the Civil Aviation Act," he said.
