ndian companies that have raised euro-denominated debt will have to repayless at maturity and whileservicing interest, given the European currency has weakened against the dollar and is now at par with the greenback for the first time in 20 years.

Foreign exchange experts said Indian companies will have to buy fewer dollars while repaying euro-denominated loans and will save on interest cost as well. The European currency has weakened 12 per cent against the US greenback since January, while the rupee has shed 7 per cent. On Thursday, the euro reached parity against the dollar, hitting its lowest level since 2002.

Indian companies usually prefer to raise funds from the US markets due to lower interest rates, but some companies like Reliance Industries and Power Finance Corporation (PFC) had raised debt in euros in the past, according to the data collated by Bloomberg.
