Diplomats pledge to keep talks on track ministry statement said. "They agreed that it was necessary for both sides to sincerely implement the understandings reached between senior commanders," it said, referring to three meetings in June between military officers on reducing tensions through a gradual pullback of troops.

A fourth meeting, scheduled to happen next week, will look at moving back troops from problem areas such as the banks of Pangong Tso and the Depsang plains in Ladakh. Since early this month, the two sides have implemented a slow pullback of troops from three friction points—PP (patrolling point) 14, 15 and 17A in Ladakh where tensions have been running high for the past two months.

This process is now complete, two people familiar with the matter separately said, adding that the next round of military talks would focus on drawing troops down from Pangong Tso as well as moving back military hardware like long-range artillery. The WMOC met came on a day the Chinese ambassador to India Sun Weidong sought to reach out to the Indian public in a video message where he said India and China should be partners rather than rivals.

The two countries need to build trust through mutual respect and treat each other as equals, he said. The ambassador also addressed those who were calling for a boycott of Chinese-made goods. He said non-tariff barriers and restrictive measures would be unfair to Chinese enterprises and Indian consumers.

Banknet moratorium after Aug is not needed: Kumar

SBI chairman says RBI will consult all lenders before deciding to extend moratorium

MUMBAI

The chairman of India's largest lender State Bank of India on Friday stamped down rising expectations of another round of loan repayment moratoriums, saying a blanket extension of the deferral benefit is not required after 31 August.

The central bank in May had announced a three-month extension of the loan moratorium to 31 August. The covid-19 pandemic and the ensuing lockdown from 25 March had led to a near-halt of economic activities, rendering people jobless and affecting their repayment capabilities.

Speaking through a video-conference at the 7th SBI Banking and Economics Conclave, Rajnish Kumar said that while it was too early to say if there will be another extension, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) will have data from all lenders before taking a call. But if you ask me, an across-the-board moratorium is not required anymore. However, certain sectors may need relief and, based on the data available with RBI, there will be a calibrated response," said Kumar.

The lender has 5.63 trillion of loans under moratorium, according to the July 2020 annual report. Kumar had told analysts on 5 June that of the 9.4 million term loan accounts, 900,000 have not paid any instalment, 700,000 have paid one instalment and the rest have paid two instalments. While calculating the moratorium numbers, Kumar had said on 5 June, if a borrower has paid two or more instalments, it was not considered a defaulter. Kumar said on Friday that in retail loans, it is definitely seeing borrowers hesitant to increase their up since the huge disruption to supply chains in April. "I can say that in June there was a sharp recovery. All the feedback that I get from the ground is that definitely in the rural area, the impact has been much less. For some states such as Maharashtra and Tamil Nadu, or industrially advanced states, the impact of covid-19 is much lesser," said Kumar. According to Kumar, the economic crisis created by the coronavirus pandemic surpasses the 2008 financial crisis.

"The virus has become the talk of the town everywhere and there is hardly anyone who can claim that he or she is not impacted by the pandemic," he said, adding that while projections of the potential impact on the global economy vary widely, there is broad agreement that the economy will contract.
