How long will it take to clean India's air?

Dr. Gufran Beig
Chair Professor, NIAS (IISc)
and Founder Project
Director, SAFAR

In conversation with

Amitabh Sinha
Deputy Editor
The Indian Express

It is that time of the year when the air in and around Delhi become unbreathable. Haze and smog engulf the city, visibility drops sharply and face masks make a return. But bad air quality is not unique to Delhi. Most of the other cities in the country face the same problem, not just in winter but throughout the year.

It's been almost a decade since air pollution in India became a major issue. Lots of measures have been announced, and taken, to improve the country's air quality. But nothing much seems to have changed, especially during winter.

Air pollution is not an unsolvable problem. In fact, over the last few years, ample amount of data and information has been generated about the sources and causes of pollution, and ways to mitigate the impacts.

Why is the situation still not improving? How long will it take for our cities to have clean air? To discuss these, and related issues, The Indian Express has invited Gufran Beig, an environmental and atmospheric scientist, best known for his work on air pollution. Beig was founder director of SAFAR, System of Air Quality and Weather Forecasting and Research, a government-backed initiative to monitor and forecast air quality in select metropolitan cities, and has monitored the air quality situation over India for several years.
