Singapore PM to hand over power to successor Wong

Singapore: Singapore PM Lee Hsien Loong announced on Monday that he will hand over power to his successor, Lawrence Wong, on May 15. Wong is currently the deputy prime minister and finance minister of Singapore. In a statement posted on the website of the Prime Minister's Office, Lee called the leadership transition a "significant moment". Wong did not immediately comment. An election is expected to follow in the months after the handover of power. REUTERS

US business inventories pick up in February

Washington: US business inventories rose in February amid strong gains at retailers and wholesalers, suggesting that inventory investment could contribute to economic growth in the first quarter. Inventories increased 0.4 per cent after being unchanged in January, the Commerce Department's Census Bureau on Monday. REUTERS

China's Q1 GDP growth likely to slow, more stimulus on cards

POLICY VOW. The People's Bank of China has pledged to step up policy support this yearReuters
Beijing

China's economy is expected to have slowed in the first quarter as a protracted property downturn and weak private-sector confidence weigh on demand, maintaining pressures on policymakers to unveil more stimulus measures.

Data on Tuesday is forecast to show gross domestic product (GDP) grew 4.6 per cent in January-March from a year earlier, slowing from 5.2 per cent in the previous three months and hitting the weakest since the first quarter of 2023, according to a Reuters poll.

AMBITIOUS TARGET

The world's second-largest economy has struggled to mount a strong and sustainable post-Covid bounce, burdened by a protracted property downturn, mounting local government debts and weak private-sector spending.

RECOVERY HURDLES. The world's second-largest economy has struggled to mount a strong and sustainable post-Covid bounce

The government has set a target of around 5 per cent for this year, which has been described by most analysts as ambitious, partly because last year's growth rate of 5.2 per cent was likely flattered by a comparison with a Covid-hit 2022. The economy was off to a solid start this year, fanning optimism among some analysts for an improved 2024 outcome, but March data on exports, consumer inflation and bank lending showed that momentum could falter again and policymakers may need to launch more stimulus to spur demand. On a quarterly basis, the economy is forecast to expand 1.4 per cent in the first quarter, quickening from 1.0 per cent in October-December, the poll showed.

GDP data is due on Tuesday. Separate data on March activity is expected to show both industrial output and retail sales slowing. For 2024, the economy is expected to grow at a subdued 4.6 per cent pace year-on-year, the poll showed, falling short of the official target of around 5.0 per cent. Last week, Fitch cut its outlook on China's sovereign credit rating to negative, citing risks to public finances as Beijing channels more spending towards infrastructure and high-tech manufacturing, amid a shift away from the property sector.

The government is drawing on infrastructure work - a well-used playbook - to help lift the economy as consumers are wary of spending and businesses lack confidence to expand.

China has set the 2024 quota for local government special bond issuance at 3.9 trillion yuan ($538.79 billion), up from 3.8 trillion yuan last year. Beijing also plans to issue 1 trillion yuan in special ultra-long term treasury bonds to support some key sectors.

The PBOC might include the buying and selling of treasury bonds in its policy tool reserve in future. Financial News - a publication backed by the central bank - quoted experts as saying last week.

Apple loses top spot to Samsung as iPhone shipments drop: IDC report

Reuters

Apple's smartphone shipments dropped about 10 per cent in the first quarter of 2024, hurt by intensifying competition by Android smartphone makers aiming for the top spot, according to data from research firm IDC.

Global smartphone shipments increased 7.8 per cent to 289.4 million units during January-March, with Samsung at 20.8 per cent market share, clinching the top phonemaker spot from Apple.

shipped more than 60 million phones during the period.

Global sales of Galaxy S24 smartphones jumped 8 per cent, compared to last year's Galaxy S23 series during their first three weeks of availability, data provider Counterpoint previously said.

In the first quarter, Apple shipped 50.1 million iPhones, down from 55.4 million units it shipped same period last year, according to IDC.

Investors are closely watching for updates on artificial intelligence development at Apple, which has so far spoken little about incorporating the AI technology into its devices. The company earlier this year lost the crown as the world's most valuable company to Microsoft.

government agencies limit employees' use of Apple devices, a measure that mirrors U.S. government restrictions on Chinese apps on security grounds.

The Cupertino, California-based company in June will hold its Worldwide Developers Conference (WWDC), where it will highlight updates to the software powering iPhones, iPads, and other Apple devices.

Biden administration agrees to provide $6.4 billion to Samsung for making computer chips in Texas

Press Trust of India
Washington

The Biden administration has reached an agreement to provide up to $6.4 billion in direct funding for Samsung Electronics to develop a computer chip manufacturing and research cluster in Texas.

The funding announced on Monday by the Commerce Department is part of a total investment in the cluster that, with private money, is expected to exceed $40 billion. The government support comes from the CHIPS and Science Act, which President Joe Biden signed into law in 2022 with the goal of reviving the production of advanced computer chips domestically.

"The proposed project will propel Texas into a state-of-the-art semiconductor ecosystem," Commerce Secretary Gina Raimondo said on a call with reporters. "It puts us on track to hit our goal of producing 20 per cent of the world's leading edge chips in the US by the end of the decade," Raimondo said she expects the project will create at least 17,000 construction jobs and more than 4,500 manufacturing jobs

TECH LEAP
Samsung's cluster in Taylor, Texas, would include two factories that would make four- and two-nanometer chips. Also, there would be a factory dedicated to research and development, as well as a facility for the packaging that surrounds chip components.

The first factory would begin production in 2026, with the second starting in 2027, according to the government.

The funding also would expand an existing Samsung facility in Austin, Texas.

Lael Brainard, director of the White House National Economic Council, said Samsung will be able to manufacture chips in Austin directly for the Defense Department as a result. Access to advanced technology has become a major national security concern amid competition between the US and China.

In addition to the $6.4 billion, Samsung has indicated it also will claim an investment tax credit from the US Treasury Department.

The government has previously announced terms to support other chipmakers including Intel and Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Co. in projects spread across the country.

Arvind Vashistha to continue as Head of India Equities: Citi

Our Bureau
Mumbai

Amid reports of India capital market head Arvind Vashistha leaving the organisation, Citi on Monday clarified that he will continue as Head of India Equity Capital Markets at Citi. He will report to Hong Kong-based Uday Furtado and Ken Chow in Hong Kong, co-heads of Asia Equity Capital Markets.

"India remains one of our key global markets. Citi has consistently been No.1 in India ECM and YTD Citi has raised more than $4 billion and retained our position. Arvind's ongoing leadership will continue to be crucial to driving our franchise forward," it said in a statement. Reports suggested that Vashistha planned to quit Citi and join peer investment bank JP Morgan as a replacement for Abhinav Bharti. However, he is reported to have later reversed this decision.

Lufthansa slashes outlook for 2024, citing strikes and capacity snags

Reuters
Berlin

Lufthansa slashed its 2024 earnings outlook on Monday, blaming a series of strikes and a slower than planned ramp-up of capacity, in a profit warning that sent its share price sliding by more than 4 per cent to a five-month low.

The German flag carrier now expects adjusted earnings before interest and taxes (EBIT) of €2.2 billion this year, it said in a statement, versus a previous forecast for stable earnings compared with its €2.68 billion adjusted EBIT result in 2023.

Adjusted free cash flow in 2024 is expected to be at least €1 billion, down from the previous forecast of at least €1.5 billion, it added.

The airline also reported a first-quarter loss of €849 million, against a €273 million loss the previous year

FINANCIAL WOES. The airline also reported a first-quarter loss of €849 million against a €273 million loss the previous year the previous year. "The loss was higher than expected due to various strikes ... which impacted earnings by around €350 million," the statement said.

Lufthansa shares were trading 4.3 per cent lower by 1510 GMT at €6.580, after falling as low as €6.576, their lowest since November 2023.

The company has agreed in recent weeks to raise the pay of both its flight attendants and ground staff to end a series of labour stoppages that forced sweeping cancellations.

Separate industrial action by German airport security staff has added to the company's woes.

Lufthansa is also among airlines that have cancelled a number of flights to and from the Middle East as tensions spike between Iran and Israel.

The group said it expects its operating result in the second quarter to be lower than the previous year, reporting an additional negative impact of 100 million euros during that period.

In the second quarter of 2023, Lufthansa posted an adjusted EBIT of €1.09 billion.

The second-quarter impact was because of effects that now-settled wage disputes, particularly at Lufthansa Airlines, had on short-term demand for travel bookings, as well as ongoing conflicts at Austrian Airlines, Lufthansa said.

"In addition, the ramp-up of capacity in the second quarter is forecasted to be slightly lower than originally planned to support improvements in punctuality for the customers and because of delays in new aircraft deliveries," the airline added.

The group is set to publish its final results for the first quarter on April 30.

Tesla to cut over 10% of workforce

Reuters

Tesla will lay off more than 10 per cent of its workforce, tech publication Electrek reported on Monday, citing an internal memo.

Tesla told managers to identify critical team members, and paused some stock rewards while cancelling some employees' annual reviews, according to the report, which added that the firm also reduced production at Gigafactory Shanghai.

DECLINE IN DELIVERIES
The world's largest automaker by market value had 140,473 employees globally as of December 2023, according to its latest annual report. The reported cuts will affect about 15,000 workers. Tesla did not immediately respond to a request for comment.

Tesla, which is set to report its quarterly earnings

IMPACT. Tesla had 140,473 employees globally as of December 2023; the reported cuts will affect about 15,000 workers on April 23, reported a decline in vehicle deliveries in the first quarter, its first in nearly four years and also below market expectations.

Meanwhile, the company has scrapped plans to produce an inexpensive car, abandoning one of Musk's longstanding goals to make affordable EVs for the masses.

Tesla shares were down 0.6 per cent in premarket trading on Monday.

Goldman Sachs profit jumps 28% in Jan-March

Reuters

Goldman Sachs profit rose 28 per cent in the first quarter, buoyed by a recovery in debt underwriting and dealmaking that boosted its investment banking unit, it reported on Monday.

Profit rose to $4.13 billion, or $11.58 per share, for the three months ended March 31, compared with $3.23 billion, or $8.79 per share, a year ago.

"We continue to execute on our strategy, focusing on our core strengths to serve our clients and deliver for our shareholders," CEO David Solomon said.

Executives at rivals JPMorgan Chase and Citigroup cited improving conditions for dealmaking on Friday when the lenders reported profits that beat market expectations.

With corporations regaining some confidence to raise money in capital markets, equity and bond underwriting business rebounded.

The Federal Reserve has so far managed to steer the economy toward a so-called soft landing, in which it raises interest rates and tames inflation while avoiding a major downturn.

Higher fees from underwriting debt and stock offerings as well as advising on deals lifted Goldman's investment banking fees up 32 per cent to $2.08 billion.

Revenue from trading in fixed income, currencies and commodities rose 10 per cent to $4.32 billion, while equities revenue jumped 10 per cent to $3.31 billion.

Global volume of mergers and acquisitions climbed 30 per cent in the first quarter to about $755.1 billion from a year ago, according to data from Dealogic.
