Rel Retail Plans to Deliver More, in 30 Min

Q-COMM RE-ENTRY RIL arm not to compete on 10-minute delivery plank, but offer wider assortment of products

Our Bureau
Kolkata: Reliance Industries' retail arm, Reliance Retail won't compete with Blinkit and Zepto with a 10-minute delivery model for its proposed re-entry into quick commerce business next month. Instead, the country's largest retailer is planning a 30-minute delivery model with a wider product assortment than existing quick commerce companies, which will be led by Reliance's own stores and the nearly 2 million kiranas who source products from the company, said two industry executives aware of the plans. The kiranas are part of the JioMart Partner initiative who currently source products from Reliance Retail's wholesale arm and have their backend connected. The company will be utilising technology platforms such as FYND and Locus for the fulfilment process and optimise delivery routes to ensure orders reach within 30 minutes, considering Reliance won't set up dark stores like other quick commerce operators who have such warehouses in each locality for under-ten-minute delivery, the executives said. Reliance Retail's quick commerce venture will initially sell only groceries and later diversify into quick deliveries of apparel and electronics, leveraging its 19,000-plus store network. The company has formed an inter-departmental team for its re-entry into quick commerce com-

Quick Run

The quick commerce venture will kick-off next month in 8 cities such as Delhi-NCR, Mumbai, Bengaluru, Chennai, Pune, Hyderabad and Kolkata

Co will use tech platforms such as FYND & Locus for the fulfilment process and optimise delivery routes. It will initially sell only groceries and later start quick deliveries of apparel & electronics.

Co has internally named the project as JioMart Express ve said the company's research shows consumers are willing to wait for most products instead of wanting them within 10 minutes. "The value for consumers in Reliance's quick commerce will be on the wider assortment and deals. Moreover, Reliance's venture will be expanded pan-India and not just the top 8-10 cities which current quick commerce companies focus on," he said. Reliance's quick commerce venture will kick-off next month in eight cities such as Delhi-NCR, Mumbai, Bengaluru, Chennai, Pune, Hyderabad and Kolkata. The company has internally named the project as 'JioMart Express' which will be integrated in the existing JioMart app. Reliance last year shelved its quick commerce pilot in Navi Mumbai when it was also called JioMart Express. At the time, it did not find the foray profitable since unit cost of deliveries are higher than e-commerce with lower order sizes by value. However, quick commerce has emerged as the fastest growing channel for FMCG companies in the past year.

पैठण / आनंद टाक
