...tre unveils air sports policy

...nt has potential to generate ...al revenue of about ₹10,000 cr ...1 lakh jobs: Jyotiraditya Scindia

OUR BUREAU

New Delhi, June 7

Indian skies will soon open up to a variety of air sports including para-gliding, sky-diving, ballooning, parachuting, hand gliding and rotor-crafting.

The segment has the potential to generate annual revenue of ₹8,000-10,000 crore and 1 lakh direct employment.

Himachal Pradesh is known as the country's paragliding capital and areas like Bir-Billing attract adventure tourists. Gangtok in Sikkim is another popular destination for air sports.

Unveiling the National Air Sports Policy, Union Minister for Civil Aviation, Jyotiraditya Scindia, said the economic multiplier benefits of the policy in terms of travel, tourism, support services and local infrastructure development will be over three times.

Union Minister for Civil Aviation Jyotiraditya Scindia

What is covered

The policy will cover aerobatics; aero modelling and model rocketry; amateur-built and experimental aircraft; ballooning; drones; gliding and powered gliding; hang gliding and powered hang gliding; parachuting (including sky-diving, BASE jumping and wing suits); paragliding and para motoring (including powered parachute trikes); powered aircraft (including ultra light, micro light and light sports aircraft); and rotorcraft (including autogyro).

Subject to review

The list is subject to periodic review. Long-term funding is expected from corporates, investors, media rights and membership fees among others. India will have a four-tier governance structure — which includes the Air Sports Federation of India (ASFI) as the apex governing body; a set of national associations for individual air sports or a set of air sports; regional or State and Union Territory level units; and district-level air sports associations.

Currently, Indian airspace is divided into red, yellow and green zones, according to the DigitalSky platform of the Directorate General of Civil Aviation.

Operations in red zones require permission from the Central government; in yellow zones, one needs approval by air traffic control authorities; and for green zones, aircraft, with weight of up to 500 kg, do not require any permission.

Crypto exchanges gear up to implement 1% TDS

But concerns over its impact on trading, investor sentiment remain

SUBRAMANI

Mumbai, June 7

Cryptocurrency exchanges are readying their systems for the one per cent tax deducted at source (TDS) that will kick in from next month.

Exchanges said they are awaiting more clarity from the government on the mechanism for collecting the tax and various aspects of the TDS. Concerns remain rife that investor sentiment, which is already muted, will be hit further once the tax comes into play on July 1.

The tax department is understood to have held a series of meetings with crypto exchanges on the rollout of the tax in the last few weeks.

"We've had numerous meetings with different government departments. We are waiting for more clarification on the mechanism for collecting the TDS. Our TDS module is in place. The moment the government gives us the mechanism, we will implement it," said Rajagopal Menon, Vice-President, WazirX.

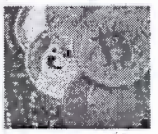
'Clarity needed'

Menon said the exchange is also working on a revamped P&L statement that will help investors understand their P&L better. Collecting the TDS is just one part of this, he added.

Sathvik Vishwanath, CEO, Unocoin, said the exchange is preparing its systems for the new tax proposal.

"The one per cent TDS will be levied from either July 1 or July 15. Based on the current guidelines, we are working on the mechanism for deducting the tax. We have put forward a few questions to the government for more clarity on the tax deduction," he said.

For example, when someone is buying crypto assets and the exchange is the seller, then the buyer has to hold the one per cent TDS, he said, adding that this may be a little unrealistic.



Similarly, if the buyer and seller are connected through the exchange, the buyer would not know the seller directly and would still have to hold the TDS.

"If we get clarity on these issues, it will be easier for our systems and processes," said Vishwanath. Exchanges said they are getting a flurry of questions from customers as well on the modalities of the tax.

"There continue to be questions about whether the TDS is applicable and, if so, at what rate. Clearly, our request for a lower rate of TDS has not been accepted," noted another crypto player, adding that there are concerns about how the new tax will impact sentiments.

Tax impact

Menon of WazirX said the tax will impact different segments of traders differently.

"The volatility of the crypto market makes it normal for people to trade. Younger investors might like to trade, but slightly more mature investors prefer to invest," he said.

He however, said there is a lot of worry about the TDS.

"Trading volumes are already 50 to 60 per cent down. We wonder what will happen from July 1. Markets are also globally depressed," he said. The Union Budget 2022-23 has proposed a taxation scheme for virtual digital assets which includes a one per cent TDS on payments made in relation to transfer of such assets.

There is massive opportunity for credit to MSMEs: HSBC India CEO

SUBRAMANI

Mumbai, June 7

THE BL INTERVIEW

Even as a number of foreign banks have re-calibrated their strategies for India, HSBC India sees "endless opportunities" in the country, said Hitendra Dave, General Manager and CEO, HSBC India. While converting to a wholly owned subsidiary is not on the agenda, it would consider inorganic plans for customer acquisition, Dave told BusinessLine in an interview. Excerpts:

A number of foreign banks have been re-calibrating their opportunities in India. What about HSBC?

While every bank has followed its own strategy, I can only say that we see endless opportunity in India. We want to be a much more Indian bank in terms of the type of customers we serve and the kind of solutions and services we provide.

HSBC AMC recently acquired L&T MF. Would you look at more such acquisitions?

India is, at this juncture, an absolute top priority for the group. The group has seen the upside potential of India. We are open to evaluating any opportunity that makes sense, whether that is in wealth, mutual funds, insurance, or anything else. We, in India, are customer acquisitive. If that customer acquisition can be accelerated through inorganic plans, we are happy to do that.

Will you consider converting to a wholly owned subsidiary in India?

We will keep evaluating the pros and cons. At this juncture, it's not something that is on our immediate list of things to do. We want to be a much more Indian bank. If the regulator makes it mandatory, we will abide by the regulator. Sans that we will be guided by the pros and cons.

> We want to be a much more Indian bank in terms of the type of customers we serve and the kind of solutions and services we provide
> HITENDRA DAVE
> General Manager and CEO HSBC India

What are your expectations from the monetary policy?

It would be universally expected that there would be a rate hike. I think the issue is the extent.

My own hope is that whatever is considered the neutral rate in the given circumstances, we need to add 25 basis points as insurance and reach that goal within calendar 2022. This would give the central bank time to pause and would also be better in the current global uncertainty. In the base case, my guess is that the rate would be at six per cent tops at the end of this rate cycle barring worsening of the external environment. The market has done a lot of tightening and is already there.

Do you see a recovery in credit demand?

The current bout of credit demand that we are experiencing is partly because of booming exports, a boom in certain pockets of domestic demand and partly due to commodity prices. There is also a certain amount of pent-up demand. Also, the work being done by the Reserve Bank of India, the government and the payment infrastructure bodies is making available credit to people who have thus far been deprived. Over the next five to 10 years, there is a massive opportunity for credit to MSMEs, and that will have profound implications for growth and employment.

Are you cautious about any segments?

No. I think there are good customers and not so good borrowers, sector agnostic. As long as we follow basic disciplines of lending and certain internal criteria on the kind of customers we onboard, we don't have any no-go sectors. There are some sectors we avoid because our understanding is weak, although there may be opportunities. In terms of lending, we look for corporate governance, transparency, and openness in the conversations with us, and the balance depends on the database. Our strength is FEMA, FDI, and regulatory reporting.

How is the Russia-Ukraine war impacting your clients?

Obviously, with oil prices going higher, input prices for everybody have increased. The impact of war has also been felt through the confidence channel. It cannot be denied that the business mood has gotten a little soured.

What is the bank's digital strategy?

Digital is a top focus for a bank like ours, which wants to double, triple or quadruple our customer base, meaningfully expand our balance sheet and become a preferred transaction banking bank. This is an area where we have a complete mandate from our global board to make sure there are propositions that are aligned to the market. We will grow only using technology, digital and data at the front end, and at the back, there will be artificial intelligence.

WEEKLY RUPEE VIEW

Range holds but downside danger apparent

FPI outflows, elevated crude prices and steadying dollar pose risk

AKHIL NALLAMUTHU

BL Research Bureau

The deadlock between bulls and bears in the dollar-rupee currency pair might soon come to an end as the risks from various factors could weigh on the Indian currency. On Tuesday, the rupee (INR) closed at 77.71 i.e., near the bottom of the range of 77.50-77.80 against the dollar (USD). Foreign Portfolio Investor (FPI) outflows, elevated crude oil prices and a steadying dollar are the major risks that INR currently faces. These are not likely to fade soon.

FPIs have pulled out a little over a billion dollars in June so far (net outflow stands at $1.1 billion) according to the latest data by NSDL (National Securities Depository Ltd). Brent crude continues to hover around the $120 a barrel mark and its inverse relationship with the rupee is a concern. Nevertheless, the RBI (Reserve Bank of India) seems to have so far prevented a sharp depreciation in the local currency with its huge pile of foreign exchange reserves. Going forward, the rupee could depreciate against the greenback gradually, if not sharply.

Charts

The range of 77.50-77.80 holds good as INR closed at 77.71 on Tuesday. So, ideally, the break of this price band could offer clues on the direction of the next leg of trend. Until then, the USDINR is technically neutral. But the recent price action hints at a possible breach of the support at 77.80. In such a case, INR could drop to 78 swiftly and it might even extend the downside to 78.30.

On the other hand, if there is recovery that takes it above 77.50, it can appreciate to 77.25 and possibly to 77.

The dollar index (DXY), which has been under water since mid-May, seems to be back on its feet as it has bounced well over the past few sessions. It has rebounded from the support at 101.4 and is currently trading around 102.75. It is back above the key level of 102.50 and the chart hints at the resumption of the uptrend in the dollar. This can act as a drag on the rupee.

Outlook

As the dollar looks to be gaining traction, the rupee might not have a good time ahead. Especially considering that FPI outflows remain steady and crude prices remain at higher levels. So, although the range of 77.50-77.80 is valid, there is a good chance that the local unit will breach 77.80 and that makes 78 a reasonable near-term target.

That said, keep a watch on the RBI decisions with respect to rates today, which has the potential to set the tone for the next price swing.

Apple launches Apple Pay Later

SHRAMANA GANGULY

Mumbai, June 7

Apple announced its foray into the Buy Now Pay Later (BNPL) space with launch of Apple Pay Later, a new update to Apple Pay. This offering will let users split the cost of a purchase made over Apple Pay into four equal payments over six weeks without any interest or late fees.

While the first phase of the launch will be in the US, both in apps and on the web, Indian industry experts believe offering such a product in India will have a scope but comes with challenges.

Apple Pay Later is powered by Mastercard network and will be available easily with no extra work needed from the developer or merchant side.

Purchasing power issue

"Purchasing power is always an issue. Apple is a cadre-rich company. For other durables companies, they need to tie-up with banks. Now every bank in the world would want to partner with Apple on such offerings, which expands the potential market for them. Apple believes in being able to create ecosystems," Faisal Kawoosa, Founder and Chief Analyst, techARC, told BusinessLine.

He added, "I have my doubts over them entering India with this product. Though we have a great mechanism with Aadhaar cards and others to trace users, there is strong sentiments against sharing personal data. I think it's too early for Apple to think of this model in India."

Besides, India already has a slew of similar BNPL products, including peers like Amazon offering BNPL. Moreover, many financial institutions and banks are already offering zero interest EMI-based features on purchases.

Invact Metaversity plans to re-launch course in 6-8 weeks

YATTI SONI

Bengaluru, June 7

Following the exit of cofounder and former Twitter India head Manish Maheshwari, Invact Metaversity plans to relaunch its course in 6-8 weeks under the leadership of founder Tanay Pratap.

Pratap left his job at Microsoft in 2021 and started Invact Metaversity along with Maheshwari. However, a difference in vision between the two co-founders led to Maheshwari exiting the company, last month. The company also had to cancel its first batch and lay off about 20 employees.

Pratap's journey as an online educator started in 2019 with the launch of his Youtube channel, followed by the launch of a six months upskilling course neoG Camp in 2020. Pratap's YouTube channel currently has 37,900 subscribers. Talking about the relaunch, Pratap said, "The cohort, course and metaverse learning medium will largely remain the same. There will be changes in terms of pricing, as we want to make the course more accessible. We are also working on making it more industry facing, so the course might lose some pieces."

Tanay Pratap, founder, Invact Metaversity

No hiring for now

He added that Invact is geared towards solving the education problem instead of just being a SaaS or metaverse company. "People want the right kind of solutions and not tech software. Software is easy to write but solutions are hard. This vision was always there and that's where the communication differences happened," he said.

In terms of team, the company will not hire more people and will continue to run its operation with about 10 employees who were retained. Invact had retained parts of admission, partnerships, community, marketing and tech team.

The company's product and teaching material are mostly ready and the team is now working towards polishing certain pieces to restart the process. Pratap is now a majority shareholder in Invact after Maheshwari's exit. Commenting on whether Invact will look at onboarding a new co-founder, he said while it is not on Invact's immediate plan of action, adding a new co-founder down the line remains a possibility.

"It is a big mission to help crores of people get upward mobility through Invact. We have to grow tremendously from where we are," he added.

In February, the start-up raised $5 million at a valuation of $35 million from global investment firms such as Arkam Ventures, Antler India, Picus Capital, M Venture Partners, BECO Capital and 3one4 VC, among others.

...ી ફોર્મ્યુલા વિકસાવી

બાયોફિઝિકલ મેથડ દ્વારા આ ફોર્મ્યૂલાને વ્યાપક રીતે દર્શાવવામાં આવી છે. આ ફોર્મેશન મૂળ ડિમર તરીકે ઓળખાય છે, પ્રતિ ડિમરિક બંડલના બે ચહેરા છે જે એકસાથે બે મોલેક્યૂલ્સને ટાર્ગેટ કરવા સક્ષમ છે.સંશોધકોના અનુમાન અનુસાર, પ્રોટીનની બે બાજુ બે અલગ અલગ લક્ષ્ય સાથે જોડાશે અને એકસાથે ચાર વાઈરસ પ્રોટીનને લોક કરશે અને સેલ્સમાં પ્રવેશવાની ક્રિયાને અવરોધિત કરશે. મોલેક્યૂલર બાયોફિઝિક્સ યુનિટના એસોસિએટ પ્રોફેસર અનુસાર, આ પ્રોટીન સેલ્સ એક્ટિવ રીતે કાર્ય કરવા માટે સક્ષમ હોવા છતાં અમારે સૈદ્ધાંતિક પુરાવાઓની જરૂર હતી.ટીમે એક અનુમાનિત રિસર્ચ માટે SIH-5 તરીકે ઓળખાતા મિનિપ્રોટીન્સને માનવ શરીરના સેલ્સમાં પ્રવેશતા સાર્સ-કોવ-૨ અને એસીઈ૨નામના સ્પાઈક પ્રોટીન્સના ઈન્ટરેક્શન એટલે કે, જોડાણને ટાર્ગેટ કર્યું.

...વિરોધ કરવા બદલ ...નીઓને સસ્પેન્ડ કરી

તમને જણાવી દઈએ કે કર્ણાટક સરકારે શાળાઓ અને કોલેજો માટે માર્ગદર્શિકા જાહેર કરી છે, જેમાં વિદ્યાર્થીઓ માટે યુનિફોર્મ પહેરવાનું ફરજિયાત કરવામાં આવ્યું છે. તે જ સમયે, એક વિભાગ હિજાબ પહેરીને શૈક્ષણિક સંસ્થામાં પ્રવેશવાની પરવાનગી માંગી રહ્યો છે. કર્ણાટક હાઈકોર્ટે શાળાઓ અને કોલેજોમાં હિજાબ પહેરવા પર પ્રતિબંધ મૂકતા રાજ્ય સરકારના આદેશને માન્ય રાખ્યો હતો અને હિજાબ પરના પ્રતિબંધને પડકારતી તમામ અરજીઓને ફગાવી દીધી હતી. હાઈકોર્ટે ચુકાદામાં કહ્યું હતું કે હિજાબ પહેરવું એ કોઈ ધાર્મિક પ્રથા નથી.

૧૫ દવાઓ પ્રિસ્કીપ્શન વગર મળશે
