LOW GLOBAL PUBLIC HEALTH RISK

New Covid variant sees highest cases in Kerala, Gujarat

A total of 157 cases have been detected in the country; INSACOG data

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA New Delhi, December 28

A TOTAL OF 157 cases of Covid-19 sub-variant JN.1 have been detected in the country, with Kerala reporting the highest number of 78, followed by Gujarat at 34, according to the INSACOG's data updated on Thursday.

Several states have been reporting an uptick in the number of Covid cases over the last few weeks and nine states and Union territories have so far detected the presence of the JN.1 sub-variant of the virus.

These states are - Kerala (78), Gujarat (34), Goa (18), Karnataka (eight), Maharashtra (seven), Rajasthan (five), Tamil Nadu (two), Telangana (two) and Delhi (one), according to the Indian SARS-CoV-2 Genomics Consortium (INSACOG).

The INSACOG's data showed 141 Covid cases recorded in the country in December had the presence of JN.1, while 16 such cases were detected in November.

The World Health Organisation (WHO) has classified JN.1 as a separate 'variant of interest' given its rapidly increasing spread, but said it poses a 'low' global public health risk.

The JN.1 sub-variant of the coronavirus was previously classified as a variant of interest (VOI) as part of the BA.2.86 sub-lineages, the parent lineage that is classified as a VOI, the world body said.

However, in recent weeks, JN.1 cases continued to be reported from multiple countries and its prevalence has rapidly increased globally.

The Centre has asked the states and Union territories to maintain a constant vigil amid an uptick in the number of Covid cases and the detection of JN.1 sub-variant in the country.

Delhi eateries prepare to ring in NY with precautions

HOTELS, FINE-DINING restaurants and cafes in Delhi are gearing up to welcome the new year with precautionary measures in place after the national capital reported its first case of the new JN.1 Covid sub-variant.

These establishments aim to provide a safe and enjoyable experience with sanitation and hygiene as priorities as people in the national capital get ready to welcome the new year.

Delhi on Wednesday reported its first case of the COVID-19 sub-variant JN.1. Health minister

Others are receiving care at home, he said. Patel, who is also the spokesperson of the Gujarat government, said the state performs genome sequencing in every positive case and shares the details with Delhi for confirmation.

The coronavirus situation in Gujarat is not alarming as 22 of the 36 patients infected with sub-variant JN.1 so far have already recovered during home isolation, said the state health minister Rushikesh Patel on Thursday.

Addressing a press conference in Gandhinagar, Patel said Gujarat currently has 66 active cases of COVID-19, including 17 in Ahmedabad, 10 in Bafol, 4 in Gandhinagar, and one each in Dahod, Gir Somnath, Kutch, Morbi and Sabarkantha districts.

Of these 66 infected persons, only two are hospitalised.

Deepika's reinvention in South Korea

MHIR VASAVDA December 28

GOESAN, IN THE heart of South Korea, is no nondescript country as they come. It doesn't have the hustle or the nightlife of Seoul, roughly 200 km away. Neither is it a transport hub like Incheon, nor the tourist magnet that Busan is. It has, in the last few years, come to be known for something quite unfortunate - as the symbol of South Korea's shrinking population. A mountain town that, with a third of its population aged above 65 and amidst falling birthrates, is at the risk of vanishing.

But there's one thing that keeps Goesan-gun going; a global attraction for which the steady stream of visitors hike up the hill hoping to rediscover themselves in a town that advertises itself as the 'healing hub' of South Korea.

These aren't any normal tourists. They are Olympic and World Champion archers who land up there seeking refuge at the Kim Hyung Tak Archery School. If South Korea is the mecca of world archery, Kim Hyung Tak - or 'coach Kim', as he is fondly called - is its highest priest.

Last month, Coach Kim had an Indian visitor - Deepika Kumari. Still breathing a little heavy after a training session, Deepika is talking about the 'biggest sacrifice' she's had to make so far in her 29 years on the planet: to leave her 10-month-old daughter at home and travel to Goesan.

"It was a very tough decision," she says. "But I felt I had no other choice." She doesn't say it but this could well be her last throw of the dice. A sort of all-or-nothing moment that could define the remainder of her career.

For Deepika, that is the eighth of the Open Selection Trials in Kolkata next month, her return to the national team will be further prolonged. That could deal another blow to her ambitions of making the cut for the Paris Olympics in July. And Deepika is desperate to be there to make amends for all her previous misses. There are stories of unfulfilled promises and then there's the story of Deepika Kumari. Without a doubt one of India's finest recurve archers, she is a former world number 1, a former joint world record holder, a multiple world and continental medalist and a National Sports Award winner. But also the one who has fallen consistently short on big stages, the Olympics in particular. At London 2012, she exited in the first round. Four years later in Rio, Deepika bowed out in the Round of 16 and at the postponed Tokyo Games, she lost in the quarter-finals.

After Tokyo, her career has hit the proverbial nadir. Dropped from the government's Target Olympic Podium Scheme, which supports an athlete's training and competition requirements. And dropped from the national team, too, after she was unable to finish in the top eight during the selection trials this year.

"I wanted to return to the national team. That's why, after I gave birth to my child on December 8 (last year), I was back training on January 10," she says.

She calls it a phrase that was 'beautiful but also boring', and a journey in 'self-exploration'. "Sometimes," Deepika says, "I used to tell Atanu, 'muje chahiye hai nah toh mein mental hospital mein bharti hui jati' (I want to shoot or, else I'll have to admit myself in a mental hospital)." Deepika continued shooting until the sixth month of her pregnancy, when things got a little complicated and she had to take a step back from playing sport. For someone who has been on the move for more than half of her life, staying still was an alien, frustrating experience.

"A sports person's life is a constant adventure. You are travelling, competing, dealing with pressure, winning, losing. Something or the other constantly keeps happening," she says. "And then to sit still suddenly, it was boring." Deepika's first attempt to return to the national team did not go as planned as 'an error' in the second selection trial

Olympic gold medalist Park Sung-hyun, regarded as the best female archer of this century, and her husband, Olympic champion and another legend of the sport, Park Kyung-mo, for company. "After reaching there I got to know that every top player in the world has, at some point, trained at coach Kim's academy," says the athlete supported by the Olympic Gold Quest.

The long list comprises many Indians, including the likes of Tarundeep Rai and Deepika's husband Atanu Das, upon whose insistence she went there.

Kim is hailed as the first coach to lead South Korea's national team to world archery's pinnacle. The archers he's trained have been winning world and Olympic titles since the late 1970s and early 80s, starting with Young Suk Park, who won two gold medals at the World Championship in 1979 followed by the Olympic title that Hyang Seo Seon clinched in 1984.

Coach Kim, the author of the book that's considered the sport's bible, is often the first and last word on all things archery. For Deepika, this was apparent within hours of training at his school. "I learnt so many things, some of which no one in India had taught me before," Deepika says.

"I had thought 'If I had done these things I knew them, I wouldn't be able to learn anything new. Had I told him I have won whatever I have because of my existing techniques and methods, then there was no point going all the way there. So, it was essential to go with an open mind and surrender myself to his ideas'."

Deepika found herself in an environment where she could talk about her technical problems and fears without being judged. In three weeks, Coach Kim worked on her grip, swing, finger control (Kim), "I don't know anything, you teach me." Teach me the right thing."

When she went in November, the Indian had three-time
