Will increase rail passenger capacity by 3 bn: Vaishnaw

DHRUVAKSH SAHA
New Delhi, 2 June

After a ministry-wide Chintan Shivir held over two days, Union Railways Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw on Thursday said an action plan was in the works to augment passenger traffic on Indian Railways to 11 billion travellers a year.

Current capacity of the railway network was 8 billion, but the demand was for an additional 3 billion, Vaishnaw said, adding that the Centre’s aim was to eliminate waiting tickets in rail travel.

Passenger and freight trains in India are riddled with delays, largely due to infrastructural shortcomings of tracks that allow for slower speeds even if the locomotives are capable of higher speeds, such as Vande Bharat. “Productive discussions were held on how to bring half of the rail network (30,000 route kilometres) on a sectional speed of 160-180 km per hour (kph),” Vaishnaw said.

Meanwhile, forward planning has been adopted keeping estimates of future traffic and congestion points on the railway network, so that these choke points can be avoided in time. The railway board has been directed to formulate an action plan on all the policy initiatives discussed by June 15. The minister mentioned that the design for Vande Metro has been finalised.

Religious tourism plan gets a push

ANIL SHARMA
Jaipur, 2 June

The state government is working to give a push to weekend getaways and religious tourism in a big way.

Some of the state’s famous tourist destinations are close to Delhi, Haryana, Punjab, Madhya Pradesh, and Gujarat, and are witnessing a large influx of tourists from these areas on weekends and extended holiday periods, even in summer.

“Looking at this, the Department of Tourism has decided to identify 10-20 such places and market and promote them on all media platforms,” said a tourism department official.

According to the plan, the official said an infrastructure gap study would be undertaken for such destinations. Special efforts will be made to improve roads and provide last-mile connectivity. Another area the state government is looking at is religious tourism and the government plans to spend around ₹100 crore this financial year on developing religious sites.

The state is known for religious places like Nathdwara, in Rajsamand district; Khatu Shyam Ji, in Sikar district; the dargah of Khwaja Moin-ud-din Chishti and Lord Brahma temple in Ajmer district; and Salasar Balaji Temple, in Churu district.

These religious sites, besides others, attract a large number of pilgrims every year and the state government is committed to providing better facilities for them, the official said.

He said besides these, other religious circuits would be identified in consultation with the Departments of Devasthan and Minority Affairs and a master plan for the upgrade of infrastructure and accommodation would be prepared for them. The department has also drawn up a plan to make these religious sites friendly for the specially-abled.

Sanchi to be 1st solar city of MP

SANDEEP KUMAR
Bhopal, 2 June

Sanchi, the Unesco world heritage site in Raisen district known for Buddhist stupas, will soon be declared as the first solar city of Madhya Pradesh.

“The work of developing Sanchi as a solar city is complete. We are not just talking about renewable energy projects, we are also executing them on ground,” Principal Secretary (energy and renewable energy) Sanjay Dubey said. Sanchi sits on the Tropic of Cancer, which makes it ideal for soaking in the sun’s energy.

Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan has said the project would ensure electricity to every house in the town through solar energy. The plan includes rooftop solar panels, solar parks, and wind energy, among other projects. Two solar stations of 5 megawatt (Mw) and 3 Mw capacity are established in the town. According to the MP Urja Vikas Nigam, the nodal agency for the implementation of the project, the town needs around 3 million units of energy per year and arrangements are being made to generate 5.6 million units annually.

Delhi-NCR-like capital region on cards

VIRENDRA SINGH RAWAT
Lucknow, 2 June

Uttar Pradesh is looking to develop the Lucknow-State Capital Region (SCR), on the lines of Delhi-National Capital Region (NCR).

The Lucknow-SCR — comprising two nodes at Lucknow and Kanpur — will encompass eight districts of Lucknow, Kanpur, Dehat, Unnao, Rae Bareilly, Barabanki, Sitapur, and Hardoi. The proposed region will entail nearly 34,000 square kilometres (sq. km) and accommodate roughly 29 million population.

According to Lucknow Divisional Commissioner Roshan Jacob, the region will develop Lucknow and Kanpur as world-class modern cities and spur economic development. This is part of the state’s target to become a $-trillion economy in the next four to five years. “A large number of industrial areas will be developed in the vicinity of the two cities, which will generate jobs for the youth,” she added.

Meanwhile, the state has started the process of selecting a project consultant for the proposal.

The development of Lucknow-SCR will act as a counter magnet area, similar to Delhi-NCR and attract private investment and provide a multiplier effect to the hinterland.

“The SCR will decongest Lucknow by providing lucrative job and self-employment opportunities in the constituent districts, arresting the migration of youth to big cities in search of jobs,” a government official noted.

The SCR districts will be provided with better transport, logistics and infrastructure facilities.
