Streaming companies retool the visibility kit

Amazon, Netflix, Zee5, Disney Hotstar sharpen their digital marketing tools as they look to make up for the loss of 00H in their media plans ith more people glued to their screens and spending more time online, the pandemic has led to a viewership spike for over-thetop (OTT) platforms. But with traditional advertising modes shuttered down, digital entertainers are looking for ways to leverage the bonanza, unpacking the online-only marketing playbook to engage and encourage discovery of new shows and movies.

T E NARASIMHAN & SAI ISHWAR Chennai, 6 July

For most OTT platforms, the absence of OOH or out of home media that helped mass visibility is being strongly felt. Gauray Gandhi, director and country GM, Amazon Prime Video India says that given the limited media choices in a lockdown, there was a need to go all out on social and digital media (with some support from TV). Marketing teams have also had to be creative with their hook and bait or else, a new show or a popular film may well disappear under the swish of a scrolling thumb.

Gandhi says, "Creatively each campaign is unique and is tailor-made for the show." The responsibility for promoting a show rests on all actors, producers and the marketing team and every move is coordinated, from the timing of online release of posters and trailer videos to the banter around them.

For Amazon's Paatal Lok, for instance, promotional campaigns played around with the concept of patal or hell. For that everyone, be it the producers of the show (actor Anushka Sharma's Clean Slate Films) or the writers and the

SCREENING LIVE

marketing team, coordinated their efforts, using a common vocabulary to build interest around the show's release.

Raghav Anand, segment leader, digital media, at EY India says, "Marketing budgets for OTT shows are shifting to digital in the current environment and especially to programmatic." He predicts that performance based campaigns will outweigh brand campaigns till the festive season on digital. Brand campaigns are what are traditionally mounted on OOH and television and which help build up to the release of a show and attach a premiumness to it, say experts

India currently has 95 OTT platforms across video, music, podcast and audio streaming categories making it an overcrowded market. To break the clutter, the platforms are using a vast array of experiential tools that integrate AR/VR and generate excitement technology, seeking increased participation of stars and putting their weight behind influencer-led campaigns.

For example, the launch of a new show on ZEE5 (Chintu Ka Birthday) was planned as a watch party on Twitter that was preceded by setting up a chat room with actor Vinay Pathak and an interactive engagement platform, #AskVinay. Rahul Maroli, senior vice president and head SVOD at ZEE5 says the company's advertising spending on digital has gone up by over

The campaigns are also designed for a multiplier effect. For instance, Amazon Prime used the premise of the show, the nether world, to generate intrigue and surprise. The team set the time of the launch at 11:34 in the morning, which, if read upside down, spelt HELL (Paatal). Such moves help gain shares and likes and fuel online conversations. Paatal Lok saw a huge organic flow of memes. propelling the show into a big pop cultural moment, according to Gandhi

The growing importance of digital media will encourage many platforms to dig into the psyche of their audiences to know their likes and dislikes and bring about a more intensive mining of audience data. Anand says, "Performance advertising is tilted towards digital as it has justifiable ROI, targeted messaging, demonstrable measurement metrics and ability to accommodate spends in smaller denominations."

Doval, Wang talk...

While Beijing's official readout of the conversation had no mention of any agreement to "disengage" or "de-escalate," when asked whether China had pulled back equipment in the Galwan valley, Chinese foreign ministry Spokesman Zhao Lijian said both sides were "taking effective measures to disengage and ease the situation on the border"

Beijing stated that Wang had told Doval that India and China "have longterm strategic interests" in the "realiand that the two "do not pose a threat to each other".

China's statement, however, blamed Indian troops for the June 15 clash and reiterated Beijing's previously stated claim over the Galwan River valley. "The merits of the recent incident in the Galvan (Galwan) Valley in the western section of the China-India border are clear, and China will continue to vigorously defend its territorial sovereignty and safeguard peace in the border areas," said a Chinese ministry of foreign affairs press release.

New Delhi's statement said diplomatic and military dialogue would continue, including under the framework of the 'Working Mechanism for Consultation and Coordination" and at the level of special representatives i.e. Doval and Wang.

Within India's military, there is worry that a "mutual pullback agreement" would effectively result in the loss of Indian territory. With Chinese troops already having intruded more than 2 km into areas that India has traditionally units has been reporting a large number claimed, occupied and patrolled, a mutual pullback of 2 kilometres would create a 4-kilometre-deep "buffer zone" that would lie entirely in Indian territory. Senior military officers point out that Indian troops have historically patrolled up to the areas of PP14, PP15, PP17 and PP17A. A "mutual pullback" and "buffer zone" agreement would mean these areas would now be out of bounds.

Meanwhile, the Chinese remain unwilling to discuss a pullout from the Pangong Tso area, say government sources. Here they have occupied 8 km of Indian territory between Finger 4 and sation of development and revitalisa- Finger 8. "This would be a double whammy for India: The Chinese staying put in Pangong Tso, and creating a buffer zone days ago, the management had put up a on Indian territory in other areas," said a senior serving general.

Realty crisis...

Says Vinit Matlani, managing director of Rudram Realty, a prominent broker in Mumbai and Thane: "In Thane, prices are easily down 20-25 per cent. All developers have cut prices. If you make full payment, there will be further discounts," says Matlani. He says all reputed developers, such as Lodha Group, Kalpataru Group, Piramal Realty, are offering discounts.

"No one will make buyers unhappy due to prices," says Matlani.

Many say the price cuts are desperate attempts by developers to generate sales which were subdued for the past five-six years due to inflated prices.

"This is a buyer's market. Developers are ready to do anything. There is complete deadlock. There are no sales, no transactions, no registrations," says Rajesh Mehta, a prominent consultant in the western suburbs of Mumbai. "The situation is worsening. Nobody knows what is happening," he adds. However, big national developers do not agree that prices have crashed. "The day prices come down 20 per cent, it means buyers will not be able to afford it. This means gross domestic product is low, job insecurity is high, inflation and interest rates are also low. The food chain is disturbed," says Sanjay Dutt, managing director and chief executive officer, Tata Realty & Infrastructure.

However, property consultant Anarock says prices remained rangebound in all the top cities in the first half of this year.

The firm already has R&D centres for highend telecom software and platform development. US-based Radisys has tied up with Qualcomm to combine the latter's 5G platform with Radisys' new radio software to power the national radio 5G small cells which are a key element of the network.

Tech Mahindra, which has already publicly stated its entry into the mobile network space by planning to bid for the BSNL 4G network, has also had discussions with the government on its 5G play. The firm is an investor in US-based Altiostar, which has built cloud native 5G radio access network software in collaboration with Intel which is being deployed on Rakuten Mobile. Altiostar also has Oualcomm, Rakuten and Cisco Systems as investors. It has also collaborated with Rakuten to build a 5G lab in Tokyo and Bangalore. Tech Mahindra did not respond to queries.

Besides this, Tech Mahindra has tied up with state-owned ITI to build new 4G and 5G radio products leveraging the software the former has built. And in its discussions with NITI Aayog on BSNL, the firm has said it believes in a consortium of partners within the country to build a futuristic, competitive, open standardbased India stack which can be sold even to global network operators.
