Immobilise unregistered digital lending apps

FRANKLY SPEAKING

HARSH ROONGTA

"Sir, the police are here with a notice for you," my building's security guard informed me in a scared voice. His fright rubbed off on even an educated person like me for a minute before my rational mind confirmed that there could not possibly be anything to worry about. When I went downstairs to meet the policeman, I discovered he had brought a notice for a court hearing for a case filed by me against a former domestic worker who had stolen some things from my residence. I had completely forgotten about the case as the stolen goods had been recovered and restored to me.

Forget lack of faith, there is fear of the law enforcement machinery even among educated, sophisticated, middle-class people. This is so even in a state like Maharashtra where the law-enforcement machinery is in far better shape than in the rest of the country. The context is the spate of suicides committed by borrowers of digital lending apps. The borrowers felt pressured by the forged notices of "FIRs" or "court cases" sent by the collection teams of these apps. The lack of faith and even fear of the law enforcement machinery is so pervasive that the borrowers readily believed the police would not only register FIRs for loan default of a few thousand rupees but also act on them.

These digital loan apps also collected on defaults by social shaming within the borrower's circle of friends and relatives. Their contacts were taken from the borrower's mobile at the time of lending.

All lending entities need to register either with the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) as a non-banking finance company (NBFC) or under the money lending Act of the respective state government. The digital lending apps in question are reportedly not registered either with the RBI or with the respective state government.

The demand for such small loans is normally met by locally well-connected people who act as unregistered money-lenders. They have a strong influence over local law enforcement agencies who look the other way as the lenders use a mix of threats and intimidation to collect overdues. Digital lending apps have simply taken the next step. When the threat itself is enough to collect on overdues, why pay the local law enforcement agencies anything at all? They forge the required documents. The perception that the law enforcement agencies work hand in glove with such unregistered lenders is enough to force the defaulting borrowers to pay up.

Digital lending platforms, if well regulated, have the potential to provide convenient and much-needed access to small loans in an efficient manner at reasonable costs. The RBI has now set up a working group on digital lending, including lending through online platforms and mobile apps.

The working group will not be able to do anything about the law enforcement machinery, but it can and should look at ways and means to identify, isolate, and immobilise unregistered digital lenders. The identification of digital lenders should occur at the point where it intersects with the regulated banking or payment app systems. Most banks and regulated payment apps have sophisticated software systems that use artificial intelligence which can identify money lending activities by clients. If, on enquiry, it becomes clear that those clients are not registered with either the RBI or a state government, their access to the banking and payment systems should be cut off. This step will go a long way towards reducing the issues being faced by borrowers from unregistered digital lending apps without affecting the genuine, registered lending apps.

People want more cash in hand

Taxpayers expect relief in the form of higher minimum exemption limit and expanded deductions

BINDISHA SARANG

Even as India strives to recover from the Covid-19-induced economic crisis, all eyes are now on Finance Minister (FM) Nirmala Sitharaman's Union Budget on February 1. Indians across age, gender, and economic classes are looking forward to relief in the form of incentives, benefits, and tax-rate cuts.

Women: Voicing the aspirations of many, Smita Wilson, a Mumbai-based private-sector executive, says, "Lower tax rates, an increase in exemption limit, or at least an increase in deduction under Section 80C should be considered. The FM should also bring back separate tax slabs for women." Until 2011-12, women and men had different income tax slabs, with the former paying slightly less. But this was done away with from 2012-13.

One popular demand is that the tax deduction available under Section 80 should be raised. Tapati Ghose, partner, Deloitte India says, "The deduction under Section 80 - Section 80C, 80CCC and 80 CCD (1) - should be raised beyond ₹1.5 lakh. This will put more cash in the hands of the middle-income group." Most want the new limit to be ₹2.5 lakh. Wilson wants a special "Upskilling Fund" for women.

Youth: The youth are looking for concessions around loans. Arriell Waghele, a 20-plus from Mumbai, says, "This Budget should increase the concessions on education loans." The interest component of an education loan EMI is allowed as a deduction under Section 80E. The youth want tax relief on the principal repaid as well. Other youth desire reduced Goods and Services Tax (GST) on electronic items such as mobile phones, laptops, etc.

"Until a few years ago, women had separate tax slabs and lower tax rates. This should be brought in again, as data shows Covid-19 has impacted women more"

SMITA WILSON, Pvt sector executive

"Government needs to bring technology into education by giving free internet, tablets, and mobile devices to students, against the backdrop of study-from-home"

ARRIEL WAGHELE, Pvt sector executive

"THOSE WHO HAVE CHOSEN THE REGULAR TAX REGIME AND FALL IN THE ₹5-10 LAKH SALARY BRACKET ARE TAXED AT 20%. THIS SHOULD BE BROUGHT DOWN TO 10%, TO PROVIDE SUPPORT TO THE MIDDLE-INCOME GROUP"

TAPATI GHOSE, Partner, Deloitte India

"THE MULTIPLE SECTIONS DEALING WITH VARIOUS PENSION PRODUCTS - INSURERS' SCHEMES AND NPS SUPERANNUATION FUNDS - SHOULD BE CONSOLIDATED. ALL PENSION PRODUCTS SHOULD BE TREATED UNIFORMLY"

TARUN CHUGH, MD & CEO, Bajaj Allianz Life Insurance

Senior citizens: This has been a difficult year for senior citizens. Retired teacher Prabhajamma B, says, "Our tenants requested rent reduction due to Covid-19, so our income has declined. I want enhanced deduction for income from house property." Many senior and super-senior citizens rely on small-savings instruments for a regular income. Prabhajamma says, "Interest income from these investments is taxable in investors' hands. The elderly should be exempted. Pension should be exempt too."

Salaried class: Covid has put a strain on everyone's pocket. Says Mayur Kashalkar, a human resource professional: "I look forward to tax relief through changes in tax rates or slabs. Also, enhanced deductions to keep up with increasing medical costs will help. The present limit of ₹5,000 on health check-ups can be raised."

chief of underwriting, claims and reinsurance, ICICI Lombard General Insurance: "Limits should be expanded to get better tax breaks on health insurance." Relief is available under Section 80D on premium paid on health insurance. Natural calamities occur frequently. Datta adds, "The purchase of home insurance would increase if some tax breaks were available on its premium."

WHAT DO EXPERTS WANT
Health insurance: Due to the pandemic, everyone now realises the importance of health insurance. Says Sanjay Datta, Life insurance: Life insurance, too, has become an essential purchase. Says Tarun Chugh, managing director, Bajaj Allianz Life: "With more people buying term plans, it is the ideal time for the government to consider increasing the tax deduction limit on life insurance, or have a separate section for deduction on life insurance premiums." The government should also consider ways to incentivise individuals to save more for their post-retirement needs. Chugh says, "As we don't have a structured social security system, annuity and other retirement products should enjoy tax benefits." The income received from annuity should not be taxed in the hands of individuals.

Investment: A Balasubramanian, managing director and chief executive officer, Aditya Birla Sun Life Mutual Fund, says, "The Budget may revisit some of the tax provisions related to capital market instruments, such as long-term capital gains tax on equities, Tax Deducted at Source on real estate investment trust (REIT), taxation of dividends, and so on."

New wage code: Your provident fund (PF) component is set to increase once the new code of wages gets implemented on April 1, 2021. Ghose says, "But there's nothing in the tax laws that exempts that incremental amount. Hence, there has to be a specific amendment in the Act to exempt that."

Among other demands, with work-from-home (WFH) becoming the new normal, many salaried people now have to incur additional expenditure to meet communication and infrastructure requirements. Introduction of standard deduction on such expenditure would offer relief to many. Ghose of Deloitte says, "The employer needs to ensure that the employee has the facilities to work seamlessly. But these facilities could be seen by the tax authorities as benefits to be taxed, hence a specific clarification is needed on this."
