Trai dials National Numbering Plan tweak

SUBHAYAN CHAKRABORTY
New Delhi, 6 June

The Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai) on Thursday issued a consultation paper on revising the National Numbering Plan to create a sustainable pool of new phone numbers for the country's nearly 1.2 billion mobile phone connections.

In 2003, the Department of Telecommunications (DoT) conducted a comprehensive review and revision of the national number plan to accommodate the rapid increase in subscribers. Subsequently, the National Numbering Plan 2003 was designed to allocate numbering resources for 750 million telephone connections across the country.

"However, after 21 years, the availability of numbering resources is now at risk due to the expansion of services and the growth in the number of connections," Trai said.

With a tele-density of 85.69 per cent as of March 31, 2024, the regulator expects the current total of 1,199.28 million telephone subscribers to continue rising.

The plan aims to assess all factors affecting the allocation and utilisation of Telecommunication Identifier (TI) resources and proposes potential modifications to enhance the allocation policies and utilisation procedures, ensuring an adequate reservoir of TI resources.

"It is crucial to assess the utilisation of TIs and make prudent policy decisions to ensure a sustainable reservoir for the continued growth of telecommunication services," Trai said.

Currently, the DoT manages telecom identifiers for both fixed and mobile networks, following the E.164 series of the International Telecommunication Union's Telecommunication Standardisation Sector (ITU-T) recommendations.

India's telecom landscape is currently undergoing a significant transformation driven by cutting-edge network architectures and services.

The advent of 5G networks introduces unprecedented possibilities, including ultra-high-speed connectivity, minimal latency, and extensive device integration. In this interconected ecosystem, TIs play a pivotal role in ensuring efficient communication and network management.

"The purpose of a National Numbering Plan is to ensure a structured approach for allocation and utilisation of TI resources, in line with international best practices," Trai said.

"It defines the numbering space and its evolution for existing and potential services, aiming to accommodate a wide range of services and facilitate efficient expansion without premature depletion," Trai added.

The comments on the consultation paper will be submitted by July 4.

Plan aims to assess all factors affecting the allocation and utilisation of Telecommunication Identifier resources

South, East India accounted for 67% of heatwave days in 2023

SHIVA RAJORA
New Delhi, 6 June

The number of heatwave days in east and southern peninsular India during peak summer in 2023 almost doubled and accounted for nearly two-thirds of the total heatwave days experienced across the country, the latest data released by the National Statistical Office (NSO) showed.

It comes even as the total number of heat wave days across the country declined by more than 40 per cent to 111 days in 2023 from 190 in the preceding year.

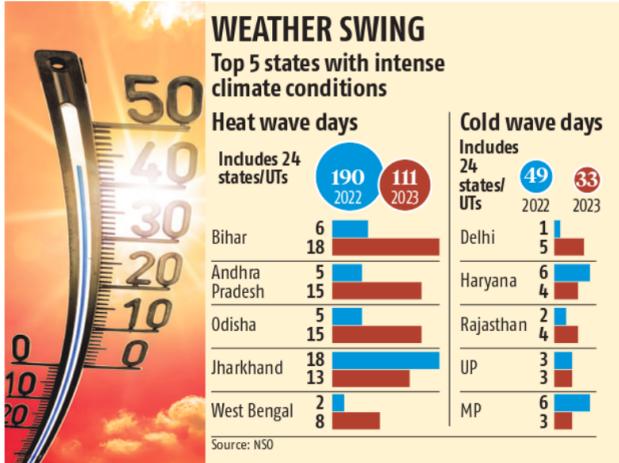

The latest environment data by NSO shows that among the 24 states and Union Territories, Bihar (18 days) has the most number of heatwave days in 2023, up from 6 days in 2022.

It was followed by Andhra Pradesh (15 days), Odisha (15 days), Jharkhand (13 days), West Bengal (8 days) and Tamil Nadu (6 days). These six states accounted for 67 per cent of the total heat wave days in 2023.

Meanwhile, the states in the north and western part of the country saw a sharp decline in the number of heatwave days during the year.

While Rajasthan had only 3 heatwave days in 2023, down from 26 days in 2022; the number of heatwave days in Delhi and Haryana stood at 4 and 5, down from 17 and 24, respectively.

According to the India Meteorological Department (IMD), a heatwave is declared if the maximum temperature of a station reaches at least 40 degrees Celsius or more for plains, 37 degrees Celsius or more for coastal stations, and at least 30 degrees Celsius or more for hilly regions for two or more days.

A World Bank report released last year indicated that India is expected to suffer 2.5-4.5 per cent of GDP loss by 2030 from the lost labour hours owing to extreme heat and humidity conditions. According to the report, 40 per cent of India's GDP is dependent on heat-exposed work and by 2030, 34 million of 80 million job losses due to productivity decline from heat stress will be from India.

On the other hand, the number of cold wave days experienced during the winter season also declined to 33 days in 2023 from 49 days in 2022.

Delhi registered the highest number of cold wave days (5 days), followed by Haryana (4 days), Rajasthan (4 days) and Uttar Pradesh (3 days).
