Court rejects Bibi's bid to delay corruption trial

Agencies
TEL: AP09

An Israeli court on Wednesday rejected a new request by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu to delay testifying in his corruption trial, ruling that he must take the stand next month even as the country is at war in Gaza and Lebanon. The spectacle of a sitting prime minister defending himself against graft charges is likely to further polarize Israelis, and Mr. Netanyahu's legal troubles have long split the country. His supporters claim that a liberal deep state is trying to oust him by judicial means after failing to do so at the ballot box, and his opponents have called on him to resign, with some accusing him of prolonging the fighting and the case to keep himself in power and out of jail.

The court ruled that the PM must take the stand on Dec 2 in a trial that has stretched out for more than 4 years stand on Dec. 2, after having already delayed his testimony once. On Wednesday, it quickly rejected another request, filed by Mr. Netanyahu late Sunday, asking to push his testimony back by a further 10 weeks. Mr. Netanyahu argued that he was too busy during wartime to prepare a defense, though he has long said that he can be prime minister and on trial at the same time.

The court found that its previous rulings, setting the testimony date for early December, had taken the war and other considerations into account. "We have not been convinced of any significant change in circumstances that would justify changing the date," the judges wrote in their decision on Wednesday. The court decision comes as investigators were looking into whether Mr. Netanyahu's aides leaked sensitive intelligence material and doctored the official records of phone conversations, according to officials.

At the Jerusalem District Court, he has denied any wrongdoing in the cases, which center on accusations that he arranged favors for tycoons in exchange for gifts and sympathetic media coverage for himself and his family. The trial has stretched on since 2020 as the court has made its way through a list of more than 300 witnesses.

5-year ban from office, jail for Le Pen sought

PARIS/REUTERS

A Paris prosecutor has requested a five-year prison sentence and a five-year ban from public office for the far-right leader Marine Le Pen, at a trial in which she and 24 others are accused of embezzling European Union funds. The trial, which comes almost a decade after initial investigations started, threatens to undermine her National Rally (RN) party's efforts to pull off its much-heralded 2027 presidential election, which many believe she could win.

On Wednesday, the Paris prosecutor requested a €300,000 (€248,400) fine, five years in prison and an ineligibility sentence against Le Pen, with provisional execution — meaning the ban on running for public office would take immediate effect. If the court finds her guilty of the charges with this provisional execution, Le Pen will not be able to run in elections even if the appeals against the judgment, the Guardian said. The trial runs until November 27, after which the judges will return to consider their verdict and consider what sentence to hand down. The verdict is likely to be announced in early 2025. Le Pen, the RN party's leader and 24 others — party officials, employees, former lawmakers and parliamentary assistants — are accused of using European parliament money to pay staff in France who were working for their party, which at the time was called the National Front.

"The law applies to all," prosecutor Nicolas Barrot told the court, as Le Pen sat in the front row of the defendants' benches, adding that the defendants from running in future local or national elections." He demanded a five-year jail sentence for Le Pen, calling for at least two years of that to be a "convertible" custodial sentence, meaning there would be a possibility of partial release.
