Rupee, bonds rally as exit polls predict NDA's return

Rupee posts biggest single-day gain since 19 March, bond yields hit seven-week low

Ravindra Sonawane & Govinda Gopalakumar

The rupee and bonds surged on Monday after exit poll results predicted Narendra Modi-led government returning to power for a second term. The Indian currency jumped 0.7%, its biggest single-day gain since 19 March to close near a two-week high. Bond yields fell 8 basis points, the most since 2 April, to hit a seven-week low. Bond prices and yields move in opposite directions. The rupee, which opened over 1% higher, erased some gains, tracking losses in Asian currencies amid tensions surrounding the US-China trade talks, and rise in oil prices, as the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries is likely to maintain a production cut in 2019.

The rupee closed at 71.43 against the US dollar, up 0.7% from its previous close of 70.22. The Indian currency opened at 68.43, and the US-China trade talks, and rise in oil prices, as the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries is likely to maintain a production cut in 2019.

revert to fundamentals post the election and government formation." Motilal Oswal Securities said in a note to clients on Monday, "Progress of monsoon, trends in rural consumption and events in debt market will be key near-term monitorables."

Nomura does not foresee a major reversal of the current (weak) economic conditions in the short term, although the end of political uncertainty and policy continuity would be a medium-term positive.

"Fiscal consolidation, infrastructure spending, streamlining of the goods and services tax, direct tax reforms and the consolidation of public sector banks are likely to be the key priorities," Nomura said in a note to clients on Monday. "Fiscal consolidation is an objective but will be a challenge in the absence of revenue mobilization or a growth rebound."

Exit polls have not been accurate for the last three national elections.

In 2004, exit polls wrongly forecasted that the BJP-led NDA would win again, while in 2009 they sharply underestimated the seat share of the Congress-led United Progressive Alliance. While exit polls correctly predicted that the BJP-led NDA would come to power in 2014, they significantly underestimated the margin of victory.

Markets have a tendency to extend their rally in the short term period from exit polls to counting days. Data shows that in 2014, Sensex rose 4.9% from exit poll to result day, while in

The BSE's benchmark Sensex gained 421 points to close at 39,352.67 on Monday.

2009 it jumped 17.49%. Derivative positions suggest that the markets are still edgy about the final poll outcome. Although there has been some short covering, implied volatilities remain on the higher side post the exit polls.

Overall institutional positions have been coming down. Last month, foreign investors portfolio long positions were the highest in the last one year at 100,000 plus contracts.

"FIIs (foreign institutional investors) liquidated in the month of May, currently drawing down to net long of only 25,000 contracts," an analyst said. "Simultaneously, DIIs (domestic institutional investors) have reduced their net shorts from approximately 45,000 contracts to only 5,000 in the last one month. This clearly depicts a trend that DIIs are coming out of the net shorts, while FIIs are liquidating their net longs." Clifford Alvarez contributed to this story.

augurs well for the business interests of Adani group," an analyst said on condition of anonymity. "We expect the positive momentum to continue in the coming trading session in view of the positive political development."

Other Adani group stocks rose as well: Adani Green Energy was up 14.37%, Adani Gas Ltd gained 12.54%, Adani Power Ltd advanced by 15.27%, Adani Transmission Ltd by 8.98% and Adani Ports and Special Economic Zone Ltd by 9.10%.

Among mid-cap and small-cap stocks, Seemco Ltd, Capri Global Capital Ltd, Kama Holdings Ltd and Mahasabtra Scooters Ltd hit record highs. Among penny stocks, Halder Venture Ltd, Gaurav Mercantiles Ltd, Apurva Invest Commercial Ltd, Shangar Desai Ltd and Sahyog Multihuse Ltd gained. "If we have the BJP-led coalition coming back to power on 23 May, then expect broader participation in the mid- and small cap spaces as they are the most beaten down in the last 18 months," said Ruskim Oza, head of fundamental research at Kotak Securities Ltd.

only the Congress has managed to retain power for consecutive terms. Russhika Mann, research analyst, currency and commodity, Anand Rathi Shares and Stock Brokers, said if exit polls match the actual outcome the rupee may head towards the 68-level in coming sessions.

Analysts said bond yield and the rupee will be under pressure in the lines. However, if it doesn't or if there is instability in the government, then there could be a blood-bath. If the flow continues to come, there is likelihood that the Reserve Bank of India may use this opportunity and reduce volatility," said Ashutosh Khajuria, chief financial officer, Federal Bank Ltd.

Elevated Securities, in a note to ing further rate cuts expectations, and global dovish monetary stance and growth concerns."

"INR has also shown huge momentum gains today. The momentum could sustain, pertinent on actual election outcome. Policy and political certainty will be good from foreign flows perspective, both FDIs as well as FPI flows. However, it would also be contingent on overall global risk appetite and current global market idiosyncrasies. That said, FPIs may attach lower risk premia on Indian assets against peer EMs if domestic dynamics stay positive. Overall, we remain wary of renewed trade tension and CNH volatility and sticky Brent prices, global risk appetite swings, and still fragile fiscal state, despite marginal improvement in external accounts. For now, we maintain the INR could drift to 73.50 by end-CY and see it average 72.50 in FY20," it added.

INVESTOR OPTIMISM

THE rupee jumped 0.7%, its biggest single-day gain since 19 March to close near a 2-week high.

BOND yields fell 8 basis points, the most since 2 April, to hit a seven-week low.

ANALYSTS say poll optimism has helped Indian markets overcome weaker global risk sentiments.

THE rupee may head towards the 68-level in coming sessions if exit polls come true, they say.

near term due to rising global crude oil prices. Brent crude has surged in 9 out of the past 12 trading sessions and is up 2.36% during the period. So far this year, it has surged 25%.

investors, said: "Markets are already rejoicing the expected political stability, with all asset classes responding very well to the exit polls. For bonds, the near-term implications would be positive, backed by the predictable fiscal guidance, near-term inflation certainty, positive
