Antibiotic resistance continues to worsen in India: ICMR report

Bacterium Ecoli Is The Most Common Culprit, Says 21-Hospital Study

Malathy.lyer@timesgroup.com

Mumbai: The majority of the country's sickest patients may no longer benefit from carbapenem, an antibiotic that effectively treated pneumonia and septicemia until a decade back, according to the latest Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) study on antimicrobial resistance.

The study, released on Friday, found that abuse of antimicrobials—be they antibiotics, antivirals or antifungals—had led to widespread resistance to these drugs in the community.

ICMR gathered data from 21 tertiarylevel hospitals across the country, including BMC-run LTMG Hospital in Sion and Hinduja Hospital in Mahim, between January 1 and December 31, 2022.

Around 1 lakh culture isolates from ICU patients were studied to analyse hospital-acquired infections, finding 1,747 pathogens, bacterium Ecoli being the most common culprit followed by another bacterium Klebsiella pneumoniae.

The report said that if eight out of 10 patients with a drug-resistant E-coli infection responded to carbapenem in 2017, only six responded in 2022. It's worse with infections caused by drug-resistant avatars of bacterium Klebsiella pneumoniae: as against six out of 10 finding the medicine helpful, only four could be helped by it in 2022.

"Even if the new antibiotics for E-coli developed in the West come to India right now, they may not work against a drug-resistant Indian E-coli strains," said senior ICM scientist Dr Kamini Walia, one of the main authors of the study.

She, though, said the 2022 report had some heartening findings amidst widespread antimicrobial resistance in India. "We are happy to say that resistance patterns of major super bugs haven't changed over the last five to six years, but the unfortunate part is that we are not seeing any declining trends," said the scientist. Secondly, the scientists found a molecular mechanism of resistance in all superbugs. "We found that NDM (New Delhi metallo-beta-lactamase) is frequently seen in isolates of multidrug-resistant pseudomonas. This is a unique phenomenon seen only in India and it can help antibiotic developers tailor new drugs for Indian needs," said Dr

Walia. The doctors also believe that indiscriminate use and prescription of broadspectrum antibiotics is the worst culprit. "Even the commonly used drugs for diarrhoea such as norflox or oflox are not as widely effective," said Dr Walia. "In fact, if we were to introduce a new drug, and use it the same way that used carbapenem, it will soon lose its potency," she added.

In the West, a resistance level between 10% and 20% is considered to be alarming, but in India doctors would prescribe the medicine even if there are reports of 60% resistance levels. "Antibiotic prescription should be taken more seriously by doctors and should only be given to patients only if needed," she

A public hospital doctor said that antimicrobial resistance will never improve without better infection control mechanisms. Hospitals need to have a system of inquiry to question why a particular doctor prescribes a broad spectrum antibiotic for a patient. The focus should be on using narrow spectrum ones, said Dr Walia.

However, a senior doctor not connected with the ICMR report said that many times, broad-spectrum antibiotics were prescribed because of poor or inadequate infection control measures in a hospital.

Noida lift crash toll rises to nine

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Noida: The toll from the September 15 collapse of a construction lift at the site of Amrapali Dream Valley phase 2 rose to nine on Saturday, with the death of another worker at a hospital in the city. Eight other workers who were on the lift that crashed to the ground from the 14th floor at the construction site in Techzone 4 died within 48 hours of the tragedy — four the same day and the four more the day after.

Originally from Meerut, 20-year-old Kaif battled severe head injuries for eight days. He died around 1.10am on Saturday.

"He had severe injuries in the skull and limbs when he was brought to the hospital that day. We had to put him on ventilator support as his brain had stopped responding ... However, we could not revive him. We informed his family and handed over the body," said Renu Agarwal, the chief medical superintendent of the hospital. Kaif, his family members said, had joined work at the site around 4 months ago. His brother, Arbaaz — who, too, died in the accident - had followed a couple of months later.

Full state honours for organ donors during funerals in TN

TIMES NEWS NETWORK

Chennai: Organ donors will be accorded "full state honours" during their funeral in Tamil Nadu, chief minister M K Stalin announced on the State Organ Donation Day on Saturday.

Organ donations are possible only because the families of brain-dead patients make the sacrifice at the time of grief, he said.

The Transplant Authority of Tamil Nadu's member secretary, Dr N Gopalakrishnan, said the state was encouraging doctors and nurses to do an "honour walk" for deceased organ donors. At least 300 staff members, including senior doctors, nurses and patients, walk with the mortal remains of the donor from the wards to the mortuary in the Rajiv Gandhi Government General Hospital.

"We are asking all hospitals to do this as a mark of respect to the departed soul. This will be followed by a state honour," he said.

Tamil Nadu is among the pioneers in organ transplants in the country, and has won the national awards almost every year for best performance and judicious use of organs.

September 23 is observed as the organ donation day in the state every year since 2008, when a doctor couple — Dr Pushpanjali and Dr Ashokan donated the organs of their teenage son, who was declared brain dead by doctors at a private hospital in Chen-

So far, more than 6,000 organs have been retrieved from more than 1,600 donors.

GRAND PRIX

THE BUDDH INTERNATIONAL CIRCUIT

After bringing F1 Motor race to India in 2011 and successfully hosting the Grand Prix for three consecutive years from 2011 to 2013 which placed India's credentials amongst the top international sporting nations of the world, now, Buddh International Circuit (BIC) has the distinction of being homologated by FIM to host MotoGP world championship.

5.14 Kms long, BIC, designed by Hermann Tilke is one amongst the very few racing circuits in the world which are proud recipient of homologation by both FIM and FIA to host two wheel and four wheel international racing championships.

The fast flowing BIC includes 13 challenging turns. The racers hope to reach around 370 Km per hour, thanks to the long back straight, measuring 1.10 Kms, which makes BIC one of the fastest circuits.

This straight stretch is divided into two parts - the first segment is downhill, that will allow the riders to achieve maximum acceleration, while the latter part, which is uphill, will enable them to brake late and maintain top speed. The parabola or the stadium section on turn 9 and 10, is the perfect camber for riders to slingshot out of the turns and permits them to push their bikes to the limit. The track's surface gives exceptional grip to the tyres, offering riders complete control over their machines.

BIC proudly welcomes all the participating teams and wishes them successful and safe racing.
