OPERATION AJAY BEGINS

First group of 230 Indians from Tel Aviv heads home

Air India may operate seven flights until October 18; IAF may be deployed

SUBHAYAN CHAKRABORTY, SHINE JACOB & DEEPAK PATIL
New Delhi/Chennai, 12 October

The MEA did not term the operation as an evacuation mission

India sent its first charter flight to Tel Aviv on Thursday to evacuate its citizens stuck in Israel amid an escalating conflict between Israeli security forces and Hamas militants.

The first batch of around 230 Indians is expected to be brought back on Friday under 'Operation Ajay', the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA) said.

An Air India B-787 plane departed from Delhi airport at 5 pm for the mission. The airline is scheduled to operate a total of seven flights till October 18 under 'Operation Ajay', sources told Business Standard. Air India did not immediately respond to Business Standard's query on the matter.

Executives of other airlines said they had been asked to inform the government about how many planes they could deploy under 'Operation Ajay'. "We are waiting for further specific directions from the government," one of the executives said.

The MEA said more such "ferry flights" were expected to be finalised in the coming days, while possible assistance from the Indian Air Force (IAF) was not ruled out.

However, the MEA did not term the operation as an evacuation mission. Instead, it said the operation was an effort to assist those Indian nationals who wanted to come back. This makes 'Operation Ajay' different from 'Operation Ganga', the last such airlift of Indians, from Ukraine in March 2022. Back then, the government had directed Indian students in Ukraine to evacuate to specific cities from where they were bussed to neighbouring countries before being flown back on IAF aircraft as well as commercial flights of Air India, Indigo, and GoAir.

Indians in Israel will also have to pay for their seats, unlike those evacuated from Ukraine. "One advantage of this flight is that when all the other airlines are charging premium fees, we will have to pay only a minimal amount for this flight. The embassy has already shared an online form with those who are keen to return to India," an Indian caregiver living in Tel Aviv told Business Standard.

The MEA data on overseas Indians shows there were 12,467 non-resident Indians in Israel as of February. However, the latest estimates indicate that at least 18,000 Indians are currently in Israel. According to Israel Majority Federation officials, there are 6,000-6,500 people from Kerala in Israel, a majority of them are caregivers.

said there were 13 Indian nationals in the West Bank and four in the Gaza Strip, but India had not received any requests for assistance from them.

External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar had taken a preparatory meeting on the issue on Thursday. He also spoke to his counterpart from the UAE and described the crisis in West Asia.

According to sources, some Indians who registered for 'Operation Ajay' include those who are living in Israel beyond their visa period. 'Operation Ajay' will continue until all Indians ready to move out of Israel are shifted out, the Indian authorities in Israel have said.

Infosys CEO says all employees in Israel safe

IT services company Infosys on Thursday said all its employees in Israel are safe. Amid escalating tensions in the Middle East, Infosys CEO and MD Saitil Parekh said its employees in Israel are primarily locals but declined to comment on the exact staff strength there.

5TH INDO-FRENCH ANNUAL DEFENCE DIALOGUE

Proposals for collaboration in space, cyber, and submarines

AJAI SHUKLA
New Delhi, 12 October

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh concluded the 5th Annual Defence Dialogue between India and France on Wednesday with late evening talks with his French counterpart, Sébastien Lecornu (Minister of the Armed Forces), in Paris.

Underscoring France's emergence as one of India's closest strategic and defence partners, the two ministers discussed a range of topics, including their assessments of the regional situation, ongoing military-to-military engagements, and enhanced defence industrial cooperation, according to a media release from India's Ministry of Defence (MoD).

Indo-French strategic ties

"The ministers reviewed ongoing defence projects and discussed ways to deepen collaboration between the defence industries of both countries. They also explored potential collaboration in niche domains such as space, cyber, and artificial intelligence (AI)," stated MoD.

Satran engines
An example of a crucial project on the Indo-French cooperation agenda is the agreement between France's Safran Helicopter Engines and India's Hindustan Aeronautics (HAL) to establish a new joint venture for developing helicopter engines to meet India's future needs.

Defence Minister Rajnath Singh (left) and his French counterpart Sébastien Lecornu discussed their assessments of regional situation, ongoing military-to-military engagements, and enhanced defence industrial cooperation advanced light helicopter, the Rudra attack helicopter, and the light combat helicopter, to the challenging heights of Kargil or the Salotero Ridge, where the Indian Army is deployed at altitudes exceeding 20,000 feet in posts like Sonam and Bana Top. Earlier on Wednesday, Rajnath visited the Safran research and development centre near Paris in Gennevilliers to witness the latest developments in aero-engine technology.

"Rajnath highlighted the advantages of co-development and co-production in India, including the possibilities for exports to third countries. He underlined the inherent advantages of the Indian market, such as a large, skilled human resource base, world-class infrastructure, and a strong legal architecture," noted the Indian MoD.

Shipbuilding
Indo-French military cooperation is also venturing into the realm of strategic shipbuilding. While India is constructing almost all of the 40 warships for its Navy domestically, an agreement was signed in Brest, France during Sea Tech Week 2022 to collaborate on joint research aimed at improving the analysis of data collected by underwater sensors using neural systems and AI.

Submarines
In partnership with French shipbuilder Naval Group, the defence electronics giant Thales is competing to supply the Indian Navy with underwater systems, such as sonars and the heavyweight F21 torpedo, which will arm India's six Scorpene-class submarines.

In July, Rajnath approved the construction of three additional Scorpene submarines with air-independent propulsion (AIP) by Mumbai-based Mazagon Dock Shipbuilders under the 'Buy (Indian) category, with these submarines procured from French shipbuilder Naval Group.

Naval Group could also potentially secure another Indian tender for six AIP-driven submarines to be built in India. France may offer India six nuclear-powered submarines instead of AIP-driven boats, considering Naval Group's experience in building nuclear-powered submarines for the French Navy and conventional-powered boats for the export market.

Rafale-Marine fighters

In the same month of July, the MoD announced the procurement of 26 Rafale-Marine aircraft, including ancillary equipment, weapons, simulators, spares, documentation, crew training, and logistic support for the Indian Navy, from France's Dassault.

This selection represents the Indian Navy's choice for its tender for 26 multi-role carrier-based fighters, which had seen a request for information sent to two vendors: Dassault for the Rafale-Marine and the US firm Boeing for its F/A-18E/F Super Hornet.

Joint exercises and strategic ties
Upon arriving in Paris on Tuesday, Rajnath interacted with the Indian community there.
