Local Steel Prices May Fall Further on China Exports

Mills likely to cut prices or offer discounts to push volumes

LOCAL STEEL

Market: Steel prices in the domestic market, which have been in the price correction mode for nearly four months, are likely to see a sharp dip in the next few days, reports from China's steel sector. This is because of the fact that the Chinese government has decided to increase its steel exports to other countries. This will lead to a sharp increase in the global supply of steel, which will lead to a fall in the price of steel in the domestic market.

Cooling Down

Steel prices in the domestic market have been under pressure since the start of the year. The prices of steel in the domestic market have been under pressure since the start of the year. The prices of steel in the domestic market have been under pressure since the start of the year.
