

On his 100th birth anniversary, MF Husain, often referred to as India's Picasso, got a special mention by Google on Thursday. The search engine giant presented a doodle to honour the artist. Husain was shown holding a paintbrush next to a few creatively painted circles

India's most celebrated and internationally acclaimed painters, Husain had a painting style that was easily identifiable, with unique modified cubes in his artwork.

However, he was arguably one of the most controversial artists in the country. Due to the many controversies he courted, it was because of those controversies that Google's gesture on Thursday evoked some strong reactions, especially on microblogging site Twitter. @googleindia what makes u prefer tribute to #MFHusain over wishing ganesh chaturthi? MF is known for deliberately
