Striking a similar tone, the US State Department said it has voiced concern to the Pakistani leadership over the country's tolerance of terror safe havens for Afghan Taliban groups like the dreaded Haqqani Network.

"We have consistently expressed our concerns to the highest levels of government of Pakistan about their continued tolerance for Afghan Taliban groups such as the Haqqani network operating from Pakistani soil," State Department deputy spokesperson Mark Toner told reporters.

"We continue to encourage the Government of Pakistan and Afghanistan, rather than governments to cooperate in their counter-terrorism operations and efforts because that's only going to contribute to regional stability," Toner said in response to a question.

Toner's remarks came days after India and Afghanistan hit out at an isolated Pakistan at the Heart of Asia conference for sponsoring and supporting terrorism and called for "resolute action" against terrorists as well as their masters.

Short of naming Pakistan, Prime Minister Narendra Modi, in his inaugural address at the Heart of Asia meet had said, "The growing arc of terrorist violence endangers our entire region. As such, support for voices of peace in Afghanistan alone is not enough."

Afghan President Ashraf Ghani had accused Pakistan of launching an "undeclared war" against his country by covertly supporting terror networks including the Taliban.
