ling in favour of Google and transferred the domain name Googlee.in to the Internet major. It also took a dig at the man for filing an appeal against the arbitrator's decision, saying that perhaps it was wrong 'Googlee' by him in adopting the domain name Googlee.in. "Is a 'Googlee' a wrong one? A cricket enthusiast will say, 'Yes of course'. In the virtual world too, the answer is well, yes, petitioner Gulshan Khatri found to his consternation, when he used it as a domain name: 'googlee.in'," Justice S Muralidhar said.

Khatri had moved the high court challenging the May 2011 decision of the arbitrator, who had held that googlee.in, the domain name registered by him, was deceptively similar to the one registered by Google. Interestingly, Justice Muralidhar in his judgment has put a screenshot of the home page of googlee.in to substantiate the claim of the parties and did not find any merit in the petitioner's submission that 'Googlee.in' was not similar to 'Google'. "The domain name and mark 'google' is a coined of Google's writing style, font, colour scheme and layout," the court said. The court said that the petitioner was rightly stopped in his tracks by the arbitrator from continuing with his "misadventure".

"He could not have hoped to get away with exploiting Google's goodwill and reputation by merely adding an 'e' to its domain name. Google rightly cried foul. The arbitrator declared Khatri out... Khatri stands bowled by his own 'googlee'," the judge added.

In 2007, Khatri applied to the .IN Registry, run by National Internet Exchange of India (NIXI) to register the domain name of his website, googlee.in. Before opening .IN domain names for registration to the general public, NIXI began with a sunrise period, during which trademark holders are allowed to register domain names which are similar to their own. Khatri got his domain name registered in 2008 and in 2010, it was renewed up till 2020. — PTI ranging from visual and hearing to locomotive. They were offered salaries up to Rs 20 lakh.

"Our PWD students are no different from the rest of the batch in terms of what they can achieve. The fact that they have been able to leverage their abilities and make it to the PGP (post-graduate programme in management), despite the not-so-accessible environment in our country, itself speaks volumes of their capabilities," said Rajlaxmi V Murthy, chairperson, office of disability services, at IIM Bangalore. Sapna Agarwal, head of placements at IIM Bangalore, said all the 12 differently abled students in the batch have been placed. IIM Calcutta has placed nearly 14 differently abled students across various domains, with finance throwing up the maximum job opportunities for those with special needs.

IIM Lucknow placed six differently abled students in Amazon, Dabur, L'Oréal, Janalakshmi Finance, TCS and Value Prospects. The list of candidates in roles such as consulting, finance, general management, marketing, and operations, said Bhavya Kapoor, placement officer at IIM Indore.

Abhishek Totawar, placements chairperson at IIM Trichy, said three differently abled students got placed from the 2015-17 batch in HCL, Muthoot Housing Finance, and Dr Agarwal's Health Care.

Educational institutions have 3% reservation for students with disabilities, though several are unable to fulfil the quota.

Companies say differently abled candidates are often untapped pools of talent.

"Our experience of recruiting such talent has been very positive and a great learning experience," said Roshni Wadhwa, director - HR at L'Oréal India, which started hiring differently abled candidates last year. It has recruited two candidates this year: Aditya Bagda from IIM Lucknow and Sunny Joon from Group provide better physical infrastructure for their PWD employees and conduct sensitisation exercises among other employees.

The group this year recruited visually challenged Aditya Singhvi from IIM Bangalore to work with Mahindra Holidays and Leisure.

"We would definitely look at hiring more differently abled candidates provided we are able to match the right candidates to the right roles," said Prince Augustin, EVP - group human capital and leadership development at Mahindra & Mahindra.

Those working for the betterment of PWDs welcome the change in India Inc's attitude towards the differently-abled. "It is a fantastic thing that organisations are focusing on creating an inclusive culture," said BS Nagesh, founder of Trust for Retailers and Retail Associates of India (TRRAIN) that runs Pankh, an initiative to train PWDs to make their part of inclusive growth in retail sector.

Credit Suisse Presents Case to Board

SoftBank will infuse fresh funds into the company as well as buy shares from Tiger Global, the New York-based investor, which is currently Flipkart's largest shareholder.

This fund infusion will be in addition to the $1 billion which Flipkart is expected to raise from Chinese internet conglomerate Tencent, US-based online marketplace eBay and Microsoft.

The swap ratio between Snapdeal and Flipkart has not been finalised, and the final price at which Kalaari and Nexus could exit is also yet to be arrived at. Credit Suisse, the banker appointed to look into the deal, made a presentation to the board and investors, spelling out the benefits of the merger. "Softbank, Alibaba and Foxconn will all lose money in the merger. But it (the merger) is the best option, as it will provide a home for Snapdeal and its 3,000 employees. Why should Kalaari Capital and Nexus hold out and demand greater returns on their investments?" said a person close to the development.

Snapdeal, which was once the second-largest ecommerce company in the country, has seen its share of the pie reduce significantly, hurt by Amazon's rapid growth, and has been forced to lay off hundreds of employees in a bid to reduce its monthly spending burn.

SoftBank had never cut funds or reneged on its financial commitments, said a person aware of the Japanese investor's plans. It had offered to invest at valuations of $2.5 billion and $1.5 billion, respectively, but these offers were turned down by other investors, he said.

Specific Goals Set

The digital platform will serve as the go-to point for "the Indian voice" for global opinion-makers, influencers, domestic media, India-focused researchers, global academia and think tanks, Surya Prakash told ET, adding that Vempati had come up with the concept.

The idea of a global news channel was first mooted by the United Progressive Alliance government but the initiative could never come to fruition. "It couldn't happen earlier for whatever reason. But this is the right time to have a global media presence," Surya Prakash said.

The report of the Prasar Bharati committee that ET has reviewed recommends that the proposed digital platform be created "through an appropriate corporate structure under the Companies Act, 2013, that will ensure both financial autonomy and global competitiveness".

The goals of this initiative will be to become a "global news brand for the voice of India". Specific goals have been set: over a three-year period, 10 million to 100 million page views a month, 1 million mobile app downloads, and 1 million YouTube subscribers.
