Indian Consumption through our lens

Multiple Indias

India 1 Consuming Class

Wealthiest Indians

- Already consuming
- Experience, Convenience, Quality are primary
- Continuously upgrading

India 2 Serving Class

New Consumers of India

- 500mn people
- $1tn spend
- 1/3rd disposable income
- Aspires to upgrade

India 3 Strugglers

Fulfilling only absolute basic needs

We have always believed that consumers are not a snapshot but a moving-picture

With secular growth prospects

- Indian household debt @ 10% v/s global average of 60% ... and, highest in savings
- GDP set to triple by 2025.. while GDP per capita crosses the crucial $2,000 mid-way
- Consumption contributes over 60% to GDP now: Insulated to global volatilities
- From hereon, >10mn people to be added to workforce every year for next 10 years!
- One of the lowest median age ... in a country with second highest population!
- Continued efforts on formalization of economy & productivity improvement (GST, Demonetisation, Jan-Dhan etc)

GST...

Seamless passage of goods
Organized business get level playing field

Increase of inflows into formal economy

Set-off for various input / service taxes

...Demonetization

Better liquidity means lower costs and higher tangible savings/spends

Formalization of economy
○ Only 50% of Indian economy is formalized thus far

Better quality products, lifestyle spends, higher productivity and more brands

...and Technology

1 Connected and aware consumers are aspirational

2 Tier 2/3 city consumers coming up the curve faster through technology leverage

3 Rising consumer comfort with plastic money and digital payments increasing organized retail penetration

4 Supply chain efficiencies leveraging technology

- US$ 400 - 700bn annual consumption increase
- Millennials spend 1.5 – 2x vs. Gen X

GDP per capita near inflection point

2

Next 5 years could bring-in highest jump in Consumption in India

- Retail sales to accelerate at 2 – 5x post inflection point (US$ 2,000 GDP per capita); Food, fashion, general to grow 3 – 4x
- Urban India to account for US$ 300-500bn of annual consumption

Target: India 2 Millennials

1

- Indian consumers more open to new categories, products, experiences
- New categories - value-added staples, global foods, fast fashion growing at 25-30%

Old is no more the winning formula: Its time for new products & categories

4

3

Technology deployment in business is key

- Technology is set to become the core (forecasting, demand assessment, inventory management, payment, loyalty, marketing etc)
- Quality, price and experience drive value perception
