Oil mjunction wins 5-year e-bidding contract from Directorate General of Hydrocarbons

Kolkata, Oil mjunction services limited, India's largest B2B e-commerce company, has been appointed by the Directorate General of Hydrocarbons (DGH) to build a platform for them to enable e-bidding, e-auction of oil and gas fields. This platform will be in transparent and fair manner for the entire country's natural resources, and help the country to reduce its oil import bill by $8 billion annually.

Oil mjunction CEO Mr. Vinay Varma said, "I am excited that in addition to managing e-auction of spectrum for the Government of India, we have also been entrusted with the responsibility of building this platform. We have built up strong content and design and conduct of large value e-auctions, and I want to thank DGH for this nationally important contract."

DGH is the nodal agency under the ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas for allocation of oil and gas fields to interested bidders for exploration and production activities. Mr. Varma said that mjunction will customise its e-bidding software to provide facilities to e-auction bids and to automatically allocate oil and gas fields under the Hydrocarbon Exploration and Licensing Policy (HELP) framework, which was introduced in 2015. HELP replaced the 18-year-old New Exploration Licensing Policy (NELP), and is expected to reduce its various limitations which led to inefficiencies in exploiting natural resources.

This new policy will not only enhance domestic oil and gas production, it will bring substantial investment in the sector and generate sizeable employment. The current import of oil and gas in India is $100 billion. The current import of oil and gas in India is $100 billion. The current import of oil and gas in India is $100 billion.
