ange of goods and services...
 's about the things that make he trade happen and at a time when the world is full of promise and full of threats and when global trade has actually been declining as a share of global growth, our relationship with India is about the safety, security and freedom that make that trade possible. We are shoulder to shoulder with India in tackling the threat of extremism and terrorism of the type we have seen in our great cities."

Johnson's remarks mark a shift away in Britain from rhetoric focussed largely on trade cooperation with India in the wake of the Brexit referendum pressed their concern about the focus on boosting trade.

 Last year, Commerce and Industry Minister Nirmala Sitharaman told the BBC that India was no longer being treated as "old friends" but that relationship had become a tight "tight professional engagement."

"India must be recognised as bearing the brunt of this for decades. If this isn't recognised, bilateral cooperation will not be a success," India's envoy to the UKYK Sinha said in June. Johnson also acknowledged factors that stood in the way of greater cooperation in-terrorism. "We have a very good beginning in anti-terrorism cooperation. Terrorism is one of the very important issues that concerns both India and the UK and I dare say the fountain head of terrorism is perhaps the same. But not withstanding that, I think we need to do much more when it comes to intelligence sharing cooperation." He added that while issues such as visas posed a challenge to the relationship, they were "not insurmountable...

 We need to see how we can come up with a mutually win-win situation - the dialogue has already started."
