Motherson Sumi floats JV with US firm for in-vehicle wireless power

FE BUREAU
Chennai, January 10

MOTHERSON SUMI SYSTEMS (MSSL), through its subsidiary Samvardhana Motherson Automotive Systems Group BV (SMRP BV), said it has floated a joint venture (JV) with US-based Ossia Inc, an innovator company that introduced the revolutionary Cota real wireless power technology.

The patented Cota technology, redefines wireless power by safely delivering targeted energy to devices at a distance. The technology uses radio frequency to power a range of devices such as wearables, smartphones, automotive sensors, IoT devices and batteries.

Apart from holding a majority stake in the JV, SMRPBV will also invest $14 million for a 4.5% equity stake in Ossia through its subsidiary, Motherson Innovations Company (MI). The newly formed JV will be based in the US, supported by Samvardhana Motherson Group (SMG), said a press release.

Globally, the JV will focus on integration of the Cota technology into a wide range of non-military passenger, commercial and public transportation vehicles. The JV aims to have its systems deployed in both private and public vehicles by 2021. It targets to not only deliver continuous wireless power to occupants' personal devices, but also to power various sensors in vehicles such as brake sensors, tire pressure gauges and key fobs.

"Our customers want access to the most advanced technologies available today," said Vaaman Sehgal, vice chairman of Samvardhana Motherson Group, the holding company. "After extensive evaluation of multiple wireless power companies, we have chosen Ossia as our preferred partner and are investing to be a part of the broader Cota ecosystem. Pow-
