Four Seasons extends the brand to luxury homes

The first Four Seasons Private Residences is under development at Worli, Mumbai and the next one is planned for Bengaluru

SHALY SEIN MOHIE
 Mumbai, 17 May

Four Seasons Hotels & Resorts, in a bid to accentuate and extend its brand presence, is stepping into the still nascent business of luxury residences in India. Betting on its premium lapels in the hospitality business and encouraged by the growing spending power among an elite urban class, the Canadian luxury hotel chain is moving into to manage and operate luxury apartments—the first such attempt by a luxury hotel chain in India. “This (private residences) will play an important role in company’s expansion plans and burnish its brand,” said Isadore Sharp, founder and chairman, Four Seasons.

Globally, eight out ten hotels managed by Four Seasons, has a residential component, said the octogenarian hotelier. These are not serviced apartments, currently offered by numerous hotel chains in the country, but residential complexes that carry the Four Seasons’ brand. “Buyers will get all the benefits, of service, quality and the establishment of a proven address,” said Sharp. One of the first such resiunder development near the Four Seasons hotel in South Mumbai and is expected to be ready for possession by 2020. With prices starting from $300 million with a minimum area of 3,500 square feet, the key target group for the ready-to-move-in, upscale apartments are ultra-high net worth individuals based in and outside India, who own similar residences in cities across the world. The project is being developed by Provenance Land, owned and run by the Jata family that also owns the Four Seasons’ Mumbai Hotel.

Keeping the gloss on Globally, Four Seasons has managed to transfer its premium, exclusive identity from hospitality to real estate. In India too, it hopes to do the same. “The brand keeps real estate value always at a premium,” said Sharp. For this, the chain pays close attention to the location, keeping hotels and residences close to each other. After Mumbai, the second hotel and private residential project will be with the Embassy Group in Bengaluru.

cum-residence launches in Delhi, Goa and other major metro locations.

With its private residential projects in India, Four Seasons that claims to be an expert in luxury residences, managing over 31 residential properties around the world—from Boca Raton to Beijing, will be treading an uncharted territory. None of its rivals here including Indian Hotels, East India Hotels, TTC Hotels, Hyatt Hotels, Radisson Hotels or Intercontinental Hotel Group, has a presence in private residential projects yet. A few run serviced apartments, but none are into branded residences.

“The potential is immense and it will only grow,” said Adash Jata, managing director at Provenance Land. The luxury tower coming up next to the Four Seasons Worli, has seen robust demand, he said. The tower boasts of 55 floors and half the apartments have already been booked. Jata added. While the property is owned and developed by Provenance, it is run and managed by Four Seasons which charges a brand royalty fee, a percentage in the founder chairman, Hotelvibe, a hotel consulting company. While others including Indian Hotels, have plans to get into the segment, none has done that yet, he added. This is in contrast to the trend in markets outside India. Thadani attributed it to the variance in regulations related to land parcels in India and outside. “It hasn’t happened but that doesn’t mean it will not happen,” he said.

Playing disruptor
 Sharp who has been on a whirlwind tour overseeing as many as 50 upcoming hotels across North America, Asia-Pacific, Middle East and Africa, is bullish on India—a market, he said, that hasn’t seen any “blockbuster changes” in the hospitality sector since he last visited it a decade ago. The only noticeable and incremental change has been the evolution of social media and its impact on the country’s socio-economic status, he said.

The market is ready for change say industry experts. The booming economy, coupled with mushrooming start-ups, has given rise to a new breed of entrepreneurs who may have not acquired ‘old wealth’ but have earned it, says Anuj Puri, chairman, Anarock Property Consultants. He says that the millennial entrepreneurs have risen above the middle-class median and prefer to live big.

The number of millionaires in India is currently about 2,45,000 and is expected to reach over 3.72,000 by 2022, according to Credit Suisse. Within Asia Pacific, India has the fourth-largest population of millionaires while in the Forbes list of the World’s Billionaires for 2017, India accounts for an impressive 10%. “These numbers suggest that such projects have enough takers in the
